WE'RE FULL OF SURPRISES

Zig,

sorry that I'm hogging up the first page of your book, but as your best friend, I'm ~~entitled~~ entitled!

Where do I start, we've known each other for a few years, but only from last year did we become ~~re~~ good friends. Remember the good times, Breakfasts at Dinkos, Going to Waldenbooks, KARAMBAH, in the village, The auto show, Parties, Super A's, ~~the~~ the granada, Route 59, 304, 303, Treetops, Highschool, Then there were a few bad times, Denny's, Boring nights in Rockland County and hard Classes..

We've been through alot together, you were a Friend when I needed one and I hope I have been the same. I think our ~~Fore~~ Friendship is unique in that we are very much alike and yet so different, and not many people have someone to count on when they need someone, so in that sense we're pretty lucky.

Soon we will be out of school, I'm looking forword to the prom, graduation, graduation parties, and a good summer, but after that we will be heading our own ways. Im happy that we'll have our independance, like we've always wanted but I'm going to miss roaming the roads ~~with~~ con mi amigo.

Your an ambitious person and, If you put your mind to it you will succeed in whatever you want to do. I'm glad that I got to know you, we've taught each other alot and I consider myself very fortunate that I have you as my friend.

I really didn't think about us not seeing each other almost everyday, until now, Ziggo the time has come and I hope that we can keep our friendship even though we will be so far apart. Once we become corporate bigshots, we can look back and laugh at the stupid things we've done ~~and we can~~, the funny thing is that we would probably done the same things over again.

We've had our differences (very few though) but all in all I think we make a great team and lets have a great time this summer. Lets not think about saying adios until the night before, it only makes me sad. I just want to let you know, If you don't keep in touch, I will personally have you cashiered. (You wouldn't want that would you)

Sheem

Remember me?

Don't forget about dinner at Tavern on the Green, I'll make reservations.

Ziggy, your finally out of high School, but I'm still stuck here another year and now your going off to [redacted] School, "make" me know who my real friends are & keep in touch

have fun and keep in touch

dear Ziggy - Baby,
dod have mercy! There is so much
I want to say to you. You have been such a good friend to me this year.
I must tell you something. a few years ago I didn't like you. I thought you were kind of stuck up. Getting to know you this year I realize to not true and you are a wonderful caring frend. Just remember me when I was running in the hall way to take your picture and I fell flat on my tushie! My rearend hurt but I got a great picture! Im going to miss you next year! So bad I didnt get to know you as well as I wanted to.
But there still is time! Im a young gurl a you a some a advice - always to what you belive is best for you.
there is nobody on the world who knows you better then yourself. Remember all the hardship in the world and think about how lucky you are to be you. You are a wonderful person and I truly care what happens to you! If you ever need anyone to talk to you can ask me out.

Lots of love -

We make a beginning.

Bleachers left silent in the mist.

A school is more than the exterior we see. It is a place to grow and learn. We spend much of our time here. Often, however, we do not realize how much it has become part of us until we leave. This is the place we meet our friends, decide our interests, create our futures. For many of us, school becomes a second home: a place to enjoy rather than to fear.

IT TAKES TWO

People need people, but sometimes one pal is enough. Everyone needs one person to trust, to rely on — someone to share secret thoughts. Together, no problem looms too big; no utterance becomes too small. With a pal, the world can be conquered or just watched. It's nice not to be alone.

To Ziggi,
with my best wishes on a very special day. With

Andrea Newman and Lorraine Rottanelli: friends to the end.

Smiling, Tracy Sysler and Risa Plaskowitz cheer the South team to victory.

"What, were you expecting a Richard Gere pinup?" Janet Heapes asks Suzanne Kane.

Don't be fooled! To tennis players Laura McGahey and Jeanine Pinetta, Luv means everything.

Kathy Ferreira and Julie Katz: friends forever.

Pals Cecil Diaz and Ed Boeringer take a break together.

WE GO TOGETHER

Make new friends, but keep the old;
Those are silver, these are gold.
New-made friendships, like new wine,
Age will mellow and refine.
Friendships that have stood the test —
Time and change — are surely best;
Brow may wrinkle, hair grow gray,
Friendship never knows decay.
For mid old friends, tried and true,
Once more we our youth renew.
But old friends, alas! may die,
New friends must their place supply.
Cherish friendship in your breast —
New is good, but old is best;
Make new friends, but keep the old;
Those are silver, these are gold.

m as they get together.

"V" for victory as Vinnie Guido cheers the Vikings on.

"We have the spirit!" cheerleaders Peggy Jones and Joann Drakopoulos shout.

2-4-10-16! Come on, Vikings, stand up and lean!

What's that? Why, that cheer is but a small part of a disease rampant at South: Viking fever. This fever can be caught easily. No one actually knows why students are susceptible. It is known, however, that the fever intensifies as students progress through grades nine to 12.

Students first discover the meaning of Viking spirit as freshmen. Sophomores are even more bold about their allegiance to their school mascot. Juniors speak unabashedly of their love for him. And seniors are downright crazy about the Viking.

Viking fever strikes mysteriously. Once a student catches it, however, the disease lasts for at least four years. Students have not sought a cure. Why would they? Everybody wants to love a Viking!

INDIVIDUALITY:

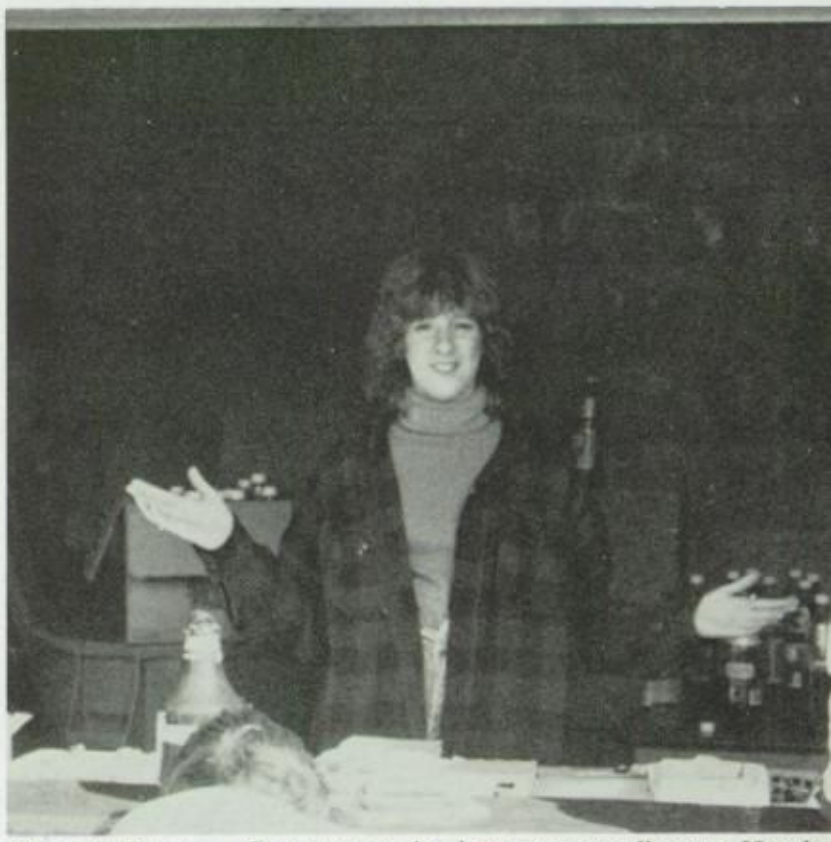
"Do blondes have more fun, even when they're studying?" asks Jeanine Romano.

We come to high school with a dependence on others, an inheritance from our early youth. We think we can survive only in a group. But we soon discover our own potential, our own uniqueness. In effect, our individuality truly may emerge during our high school years.

We realize anything is possible as we venture into new areas, doing things we like, doing things to please our inner selves. We learn to take risks, we learn to act alone, and we learn to stand apart from our family, our friends.

It is an exhilarating business — the business of finding our own voices and growing up.

Smile, Kristen Vanderlinde, you're on "Candid Camera."



"Friends, Romans, Countrymen, lend me your ears," orates Heathe Cullen.

At South, students attend a wide variety of courses, from the ancient language Latin to modern computer science classes. We gain vast knowledge, as diversified as the student body itself. But we receive more than just an education in reading, writing, and mathematics. As South students, we graduate from high school with great knowledge of the world around us. This firm foundation of learning will eventually lead us to success.

THE BEST IS YET TO COME

Ziggy,

As I sit here in my room and think back on all the good, really great, times we've had, the places we've gone, the people we've met, I realize that whenever we were together, you always made me laugh, sing, and smile. I could always count on you for a good time, the Lovebug - Zebra concert, the AC/DC concert and all the nights we ended up at Super-A. Remember the ride down to Sea Isle City, Atlantic City, ~~and~~ in Turbo-Zone, and the famous 4am bare board walk with Nut and Geranamo. Times like ~~that~~ that really make me think about how great a person you are, fun-loving and a little bit psycopathic. Remember our date with Resa and Dina Two hot babes, the popcorn fight and the post midnight ride on Strawtown Rd - we were flying. The Pines was a pisser. and remember the night me, you, + Nut + Spino sat in your car outside the movies and talked??? Remember when I slept over your house and we sat and talked to the wee hours of the morning. So much has passed between us it's incredible. But most of all I'll remember our recent trip to the city at Olmes and the Hard Rock Cafe! That was the best of times. We laughted to the point of tears. It physically hurt. If you ever see a shirt with a seat belt on it you'll know who manufactured it. Then we made our classic stroll through the citty at 4 smoking up a storm. The canoe trip was also a great experience - Roxanne, running speed, and Focanda were all there. Anyway we've had our share of good times. When I think of you I think of Lamborghini and Hieniken the best of in the world. I wish you all the luck and success this life has to offer and I know you will succeed in anything you do.

The Best is yet to Come!!!

Love, your fruitest friendest

Andy

Dedication

Mr. McGuire in the classroom.

Mr. McGuire watches his team.

Through your wit, your wisdom, and your kindness, you have taught us that being human means striving, growing, achieving. In essence, you have shown us that we can shape our world. As both teacher and coach, you have made us feel good about ourselves and our future.

With gratitude and respect, we dedicate this yearbook to you, Mr. Peter McGuire, our friend.

Dear Zoey,
Well we're almost out of here kid! I can't believe 4 yrs of our lives have gone so fast. They always say enjoy your high school years but I guess they were right! I'm really glad I got to grow up with you, you're such a nice person and the best friend anyone could have! But I will always remember the good times we had and the bad. Retaining the Braves championship, making the dance team, and the countless hours we've spent in that classroom chopping it up instead of trying to help me stop for my history test was a bad idea, you were a great help! Take care of yourself in life and always remember that you're a great person and deserve the best. Love always,
Tara Sullivan

Student Life

Student life is made up of two equal parts — time spent in class and time spent out of class. We have many great times going out to lunch with friends and attending late-night dances, but it is within the classroom that we really open and explore the horizons of our lives. In the classroom we receive invaluable information and tolls for learning, but we also learn about ourselves. We discover our interests and our shortcomings, and we are able to shape ourselves and our futures from this knowledge.

Pep Week

School spirit — always present at South — reaches a crescendo with the North-South game, traditionally the last game of the season. The pep rally preceding the game brings together many of the fall activities, including varsity, junior varsity, and freshman football; varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders; varsity and junior varsity twirlers, and colorguards.

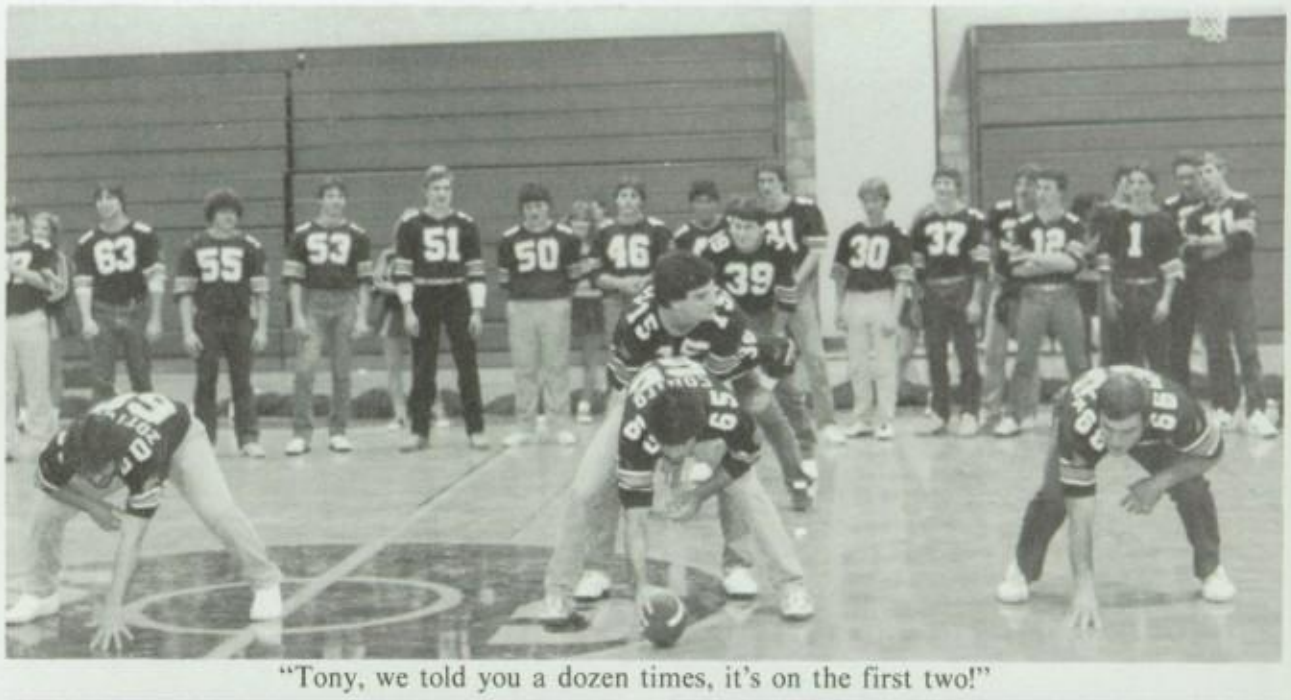
On Brown-and-Gold Day, the day before the game, all members of the football team wear their jerseys. Also in uniform are cheerleaders, colorguards, and twirlers. In fact, most of the school population don the brown-and-gold magic combination. With South students and staff popping their buttons proclaiming "Mighty Vikings" and "All that Glitters Is Gold," school spirit becomes contagious.

One button contains the message "We're Loyal Viking Fans," and so it seems as South students gather for the pep rally. Coach Maurice Scro introduces the football players, and the boys run a few plays. Senior players are reintroduced, and their mothers are called forward to receive corsages from their sons.

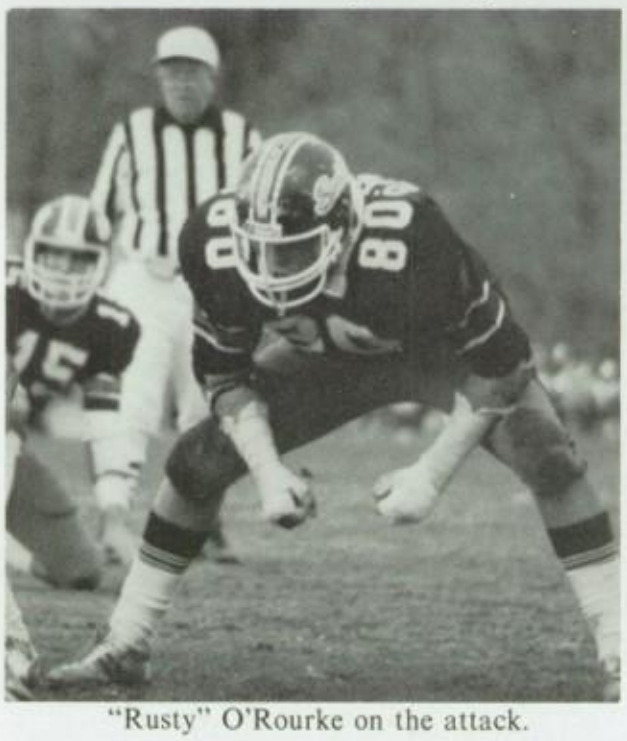
All performances please the enthusiastic crowd. Colorguards perform a routine to "So Many Men." Junior varsity twirlers choose "Holiday" with solos by the girls. Lighted batons enhance the varsity twirlers' "1999." Varsity cheerleaders perform "Line-up" and a pyramid cheer. In addition, they do a dance routine to "Everybody." Junior varsity cheerleaders do their traditional "Hello" cheer and two new cheers, "Neverle" and "Power," a pyramid cheer. South's marching band provides the music.

"Pep Week" has brought students together. The sense of school spirit and comaraderie is unexcelled in South's history.

South wins the game 21-6, with the full support of their school behind them.



"Tony, we told you a dozen times, it's on the first two!"



"Rusty" O'Rourke on the attack.

A. Newman and B. Zottoli snuggle near the bonfire.

" . . . victory, Viking SUCCESS!"

Setting Spirit At South

South's band relaxes after an impressive half-time performance.

Maureen Barry and Eileen Rutter share the thrill of a Viking victory.

We're loyal Viking fans!

"Wait Ref, I gotta tie my shoe!"

Dear Ziggy,
I'm really glad I got to become friends with you this year. You're a really great, funny, guy and I've really enjoyed all the times we went out. I'll never forget the time at Hogan's parking lot and also of other things. good luck always. I'm sure I'll see you this summer
good luck again
Love.

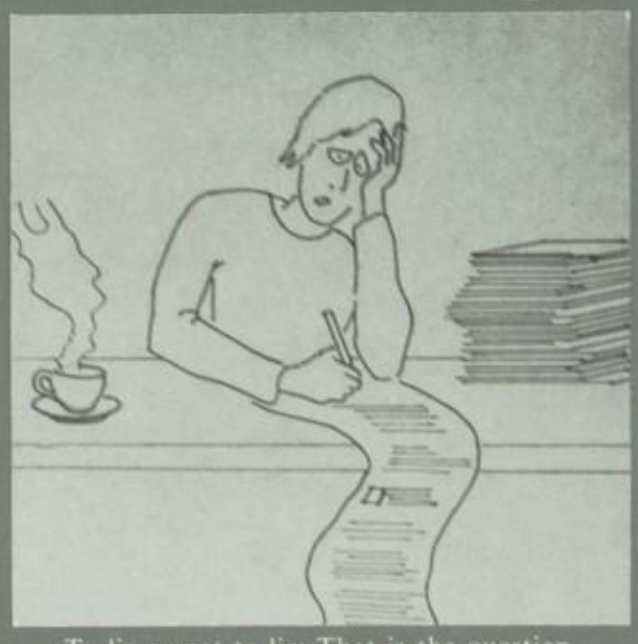
The College

Do all these colleges really exist?

Eenie, meenie, minie, mo: "Where should I go?"



To lie or not to lie: That is the question.

Students with college aspirations learn a brand new game during their senior year. It's called the college admissions game. First, whether we are ready or not, many colleges take the opportunity to congratulate us on our PSAT scores and try to convince us that their school is the only place to go.

Some of these institutions, located finally with the aid of the most precise atlas, turn out to be 500 miles from civilization. After sorting through piles of mail and listening to friends, family, and anyone else with an opinion, we must narrow down our choices. Seldom helpful guidance office visits from college admissions officers prompt many South students to rejoice, "Hey guys, Spitwater State is here third period. Now we can get out of math."

Next, the applications must be completed. First, we seek teachers willing to write recommendations, we erase their blackboards, and we remain on our best behavior until we are sure they have mailed the evaluations. Application questions crucial in the admissions decision such as "What great person of the ninth century do you admire most?" or "What articles have you had published within the past year?" must be answered along with the dreaded "extracurricular activities" questions, making us wish we had joined the tiddlywinks team back in the ninth grade.

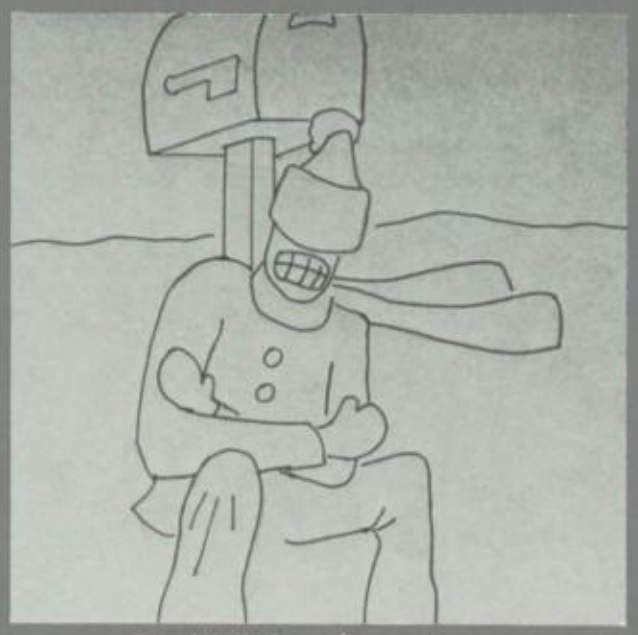
If the application alone isn't sufficient, we are often placed at the mercy of an interviewer who judges how well we respond to unbearable questions like "How would you evaluate yourself as a person" and "What books not required by your courses have you read recently?"

Finally, all of the work is completed and mailed, giving us a few months to get over the mistakes made in the submitted application and the shaky interview as an anonymous committee determines our fate. Often, we are found semi-comatose during the early weeks of April camping at the local post office being fed intravenously on liquefied G.O. store snacks delivered by loyal friends.

Ultimately, the letters arrive and we celebrate our acceptances as we lament our rejections. For the first time in six months, we can relax, knowing that attending college will be much more enjoyable than trying to get in.

Admissions Game

The Interview: Character-building.



The Vigil: I need acceptance.

You've come a long way, Baby!

The Board of Cooperative Educational Services, commonly known as B.O.C.E.S., offers students the opportunity for occupational or technical training during their high school career. Interested students enroll in B.O.C.E.S. as juniors, and spend half of each school day for the next two years learning their trade as they earn high-school credits. Many of the courses available include on-the-job training and equipment and facilities which resemble the actual working world.

Along with invaluable experience, B.O.C.E.S. offers students a chance to meet others from Rockland County with the same interests. Long-lasting friendships and good times often result from the occupational training.

B.O.C.E.S. students graduate with knowledge of their chosen field. Some will go on to continue their education, and others will become part of the work force.

National Merit Semi-Finalists

Five Clarkstown South seniors were announced as National Merit semi-finalists during the fall of 1983. To earn this distinction, these students scored in the top one-half of one percent on the PSAT. They advanced to further competition for a number of major scholarships.

Richard Katz, Robert Lowe, Andrew Rosenbaum. Missing: Patrick Lynch.

Letter of Commendation Winners

A total of 27 South students whose scores ranged from 178 to 199 earned National Merit commended honors. Their performance on the PSAT ranks them in the top five percent nationally.

Alphabet Soup

Sesame Street revisited.

Sophomore Jennifer Runne explores the list of standardized tests.

High school years are filled with hundreds of letters and numbers referring to grades, courses, rooms, and lockers. But none are more confusing or extensive than the codes used by standardized testing services.

We are first exposed to the PSAT, a smaller version of the SAT. To avoid redundancy, the PSAT is also called the NMSQT. There is only one name for the SAT, but a special appellation, TSWE, is given to a certain part of the exam. A month later, we are advised to take three ACH's, including an ECT. Those of us desiring college credit can take an AP, the test with the shortest name, but the most expensive to take.

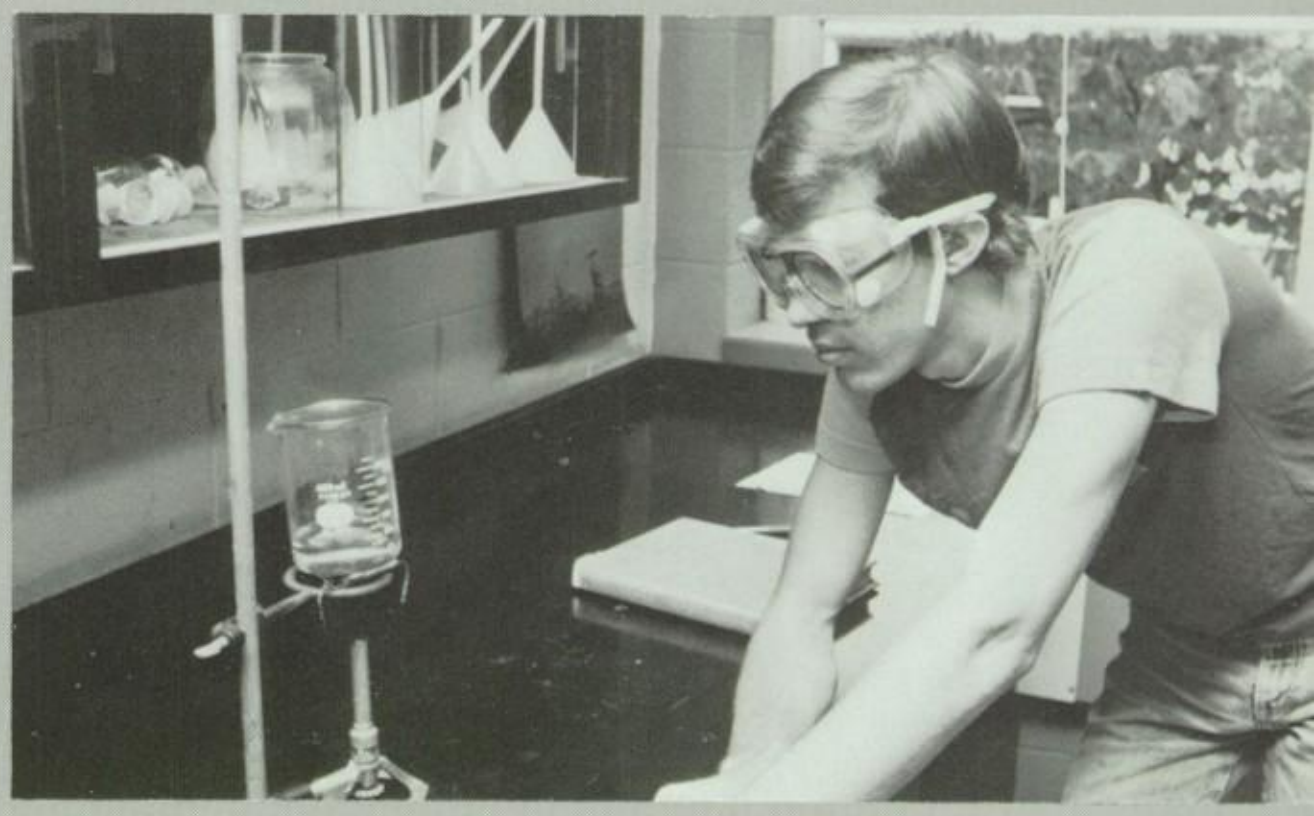
With all these assorted abbreviations, it probably makes sense that the organization that administers these exams also has three names: ETS, ATP, and CEEB. And to add to the confusion, another company called the ACT serves the southern and western United States with an entirely different language of letters.

Even filling out the registration form can be confusing. For examle, we are asked if we wish to fill out an FAF or SDQ and become involved with the SSS or CSS. For students of 335913 (also known as 3192 in some questions) high school in the county of 36087, these numbers must be entered correctly on the form.

A slightest error in one of these numbers will refer your name and records to a high school in Orange County, Nebraska, Bangladesh, or even Outer Space.

Labs Yield Surprising Results

Juniors Carol Kelly and Sheila Barnes concoct a love potion.



"OK, what next?" wonders Ed Wheaton.

"Look out," says Vinnie Alberto. "This could explode any minute!"

Andréa Kelly: "I don't think it's working!"

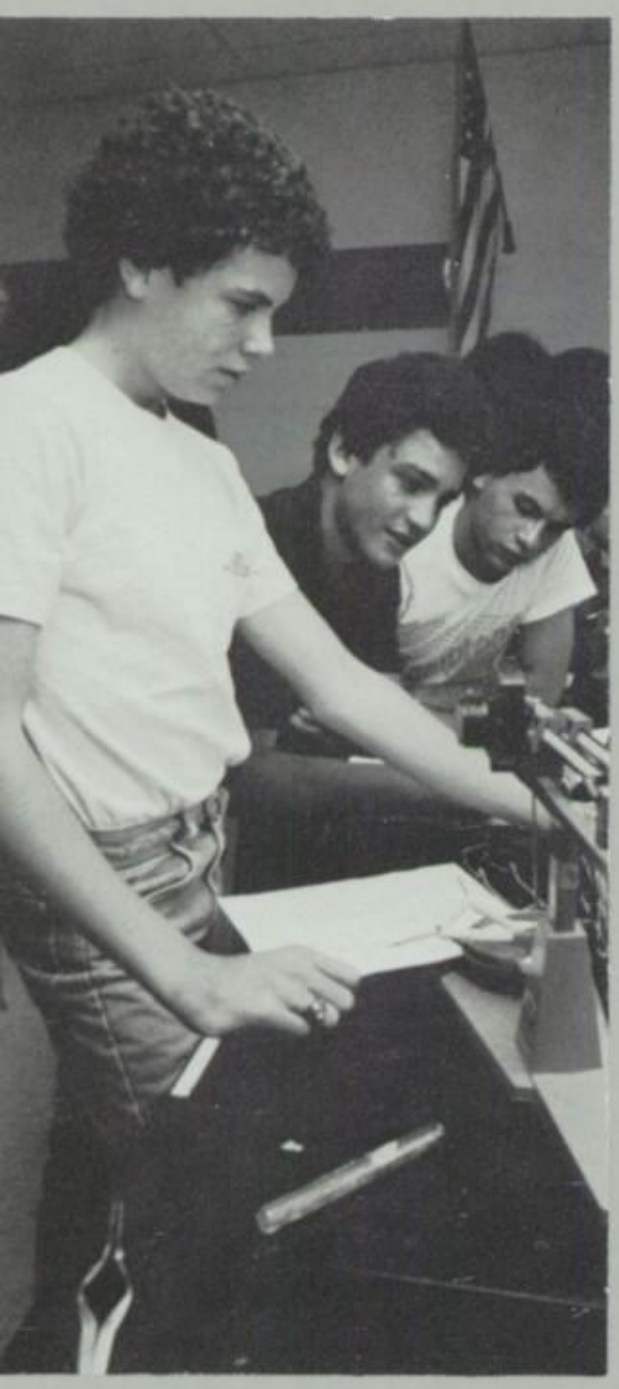
If It's Green and Wriggles, It's Biology

Who can forget the classic biology lab — the dissection of the fetal pig? Piggy began so cute and pink, until a pair of scalpel-happy students were let loose with him. One lab partner enjoyed hiding various pieces of Piggy in notebooks, wallets, and lunch bags as the other cowered in a corner, bemoaning Piggy's demise.

Each lab period involved an investigation of one of the seven body systems. Therefore, the poor swine had to survive in a plastic bag full of formaldehyde for seven weeks. If he had not been green and wriggley at the start of the experiment, he certainly was by the end.

This is no Mickey Mouse lab to Colette Holland an Lorraine Rotanelli.

Adria Mastronardi takes care.



Teamwork with Collin McDermott, Adam Marks, and Tim Paoli.

If It Smells Bad, It's Chemistry

Chemistry lab is an experience unlike any other. It is similar to walking through a dark maze and not knowing where to turn.

The period begins with the instructor telling students what they should be doing. Words such as phenolphthaline, permanganate, and titration waft through the air like ether, but hold little significance to the students.

The next hour is spent taking temperatures, weighing beakers, and fudging data. Surprisingly, the lab yields the expected results. Apparently, ignorance is not always a source of error.

Mark Miller: "I think I smell a rat!"

If It Doesn't Work, It's Physics

Physics lab is perhaps the most enjoyable because it reminds students of their childhood. Students are instructed to play with little cars, marbles, slinkys, and water. They spend time proving that the acceleration of gravity is 4.3206 meters per second^2 and that the specific heat of water is .003 (so what if it's a little off). Competition is fierce among students for the greatest percent error.

Physics labs may not always work out, but they are a wonderful means of encouraging students to enter the field. Astonishing as it seems, people actually get paid for doing such work.

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY

"It Might Be You"

King and Queen, Joe Taccetta and Jeanine Romano.

Each year, in mid-November, the Girls' Athletic Association sponsors a dance. Prior to the dance, seniors from varsity sports are nominated for king or queen by their coaches, and then voted on by the student body. On the night of the dance the winners are announced — this year's winners are Jeanine Romano and Joe Taccetta — but this is not the main attraction of the event.

By November, the new school year has settled in, and new acquaintances have been made. The G.A.A. dance, traditionally a "Sadie Hawkins" event, provides girls with an opportunity to ask someone special.

Girls from many sports constitute the Girls' Athletic Association. They spend many hours planning, decorating, and baking to create a memorable evening at a modest price. Proceeds from the dance are donated to South's teams.

Friends Stacey Smith, Laura Zuccarello, Joe Reichling, and Stephanie Sherman share good times.

Michelle Bernstein and Rich Katz dance to the theme song.

Robert Lowe and Joan Currao relax between dances.

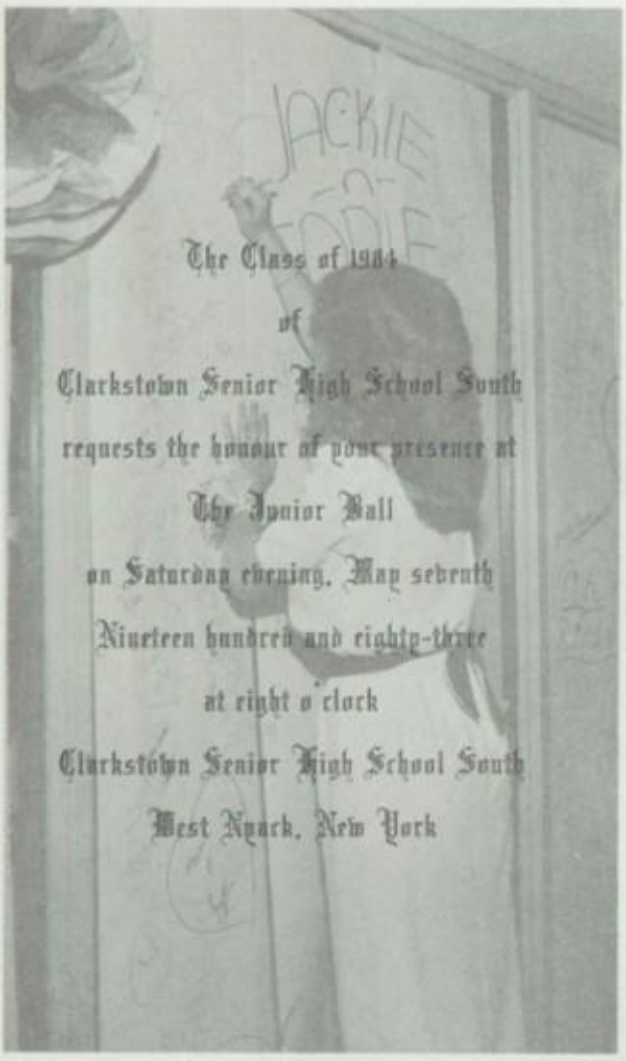
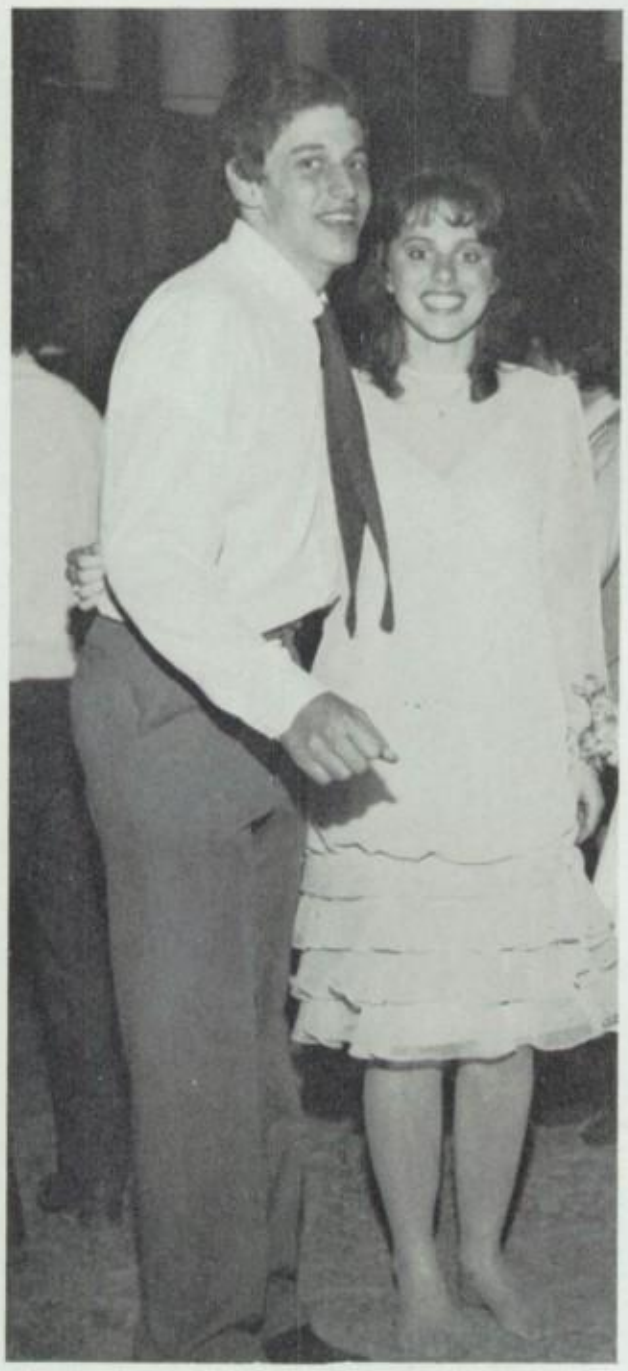
Junior Magic



A special night for Kriste Breuckner and Michael Rimland.



Senior Sweethearts: Dana Ferguson and Mike Dari.

Enjoying the evening, Andy Faraone and Jill Schnabel dance the night away.

The Class of 1984 remembers the magic of their Junior Ball. For one enchanted evening, the lobby is transformed into an illuminated ballroom — paper flowers and streamers adding to the romance. As couples dance the brief hours away to theme song "We've Got Tonight," sung by Kenny Rogers and Sheena Easton, somehow they know it is a night to cherish forever.

HALLOWEEN HITS SOUTH

"It's a jungle out there," says Kevin McNulty.

As underclassmen, we watch in amazement as monsters, goblins, ghouls, and other halloween frights invade the school on Halloween Day. What is it like to dress up in school for a day? Do classmates recognize you?

Seniors compete with each other to see who can invent the ugliest or most original costume, and prizes are awarded during assembly at the end of the day. But the best part is trying to figure out who is who. Sitting in class, watching seniors walk by in costume, we wonder what we will dress up as when our Halloween Day finally comes. And there are plenty of ideas to be had just by looking around!

"We're ready, Where's the fire?" exclaim Matt Schorr and Chris Fiske.

The guys say "hello."

Junior Ring Ceremony: A day long anticipated becomes a reality as many students receive their class rings. School spirit runs high and excitement is great. Classmates turn each other's ring for good luck. A girl gets her boyfriend's ring to wear. But the best is yet to come. In the lobby, a D.J., refreshments, and members of the Class of 1985 combine to make the Ring Dance a great success. And, looking at their own ring, students realize they have something that will bring back high school memories forever.

Traditional ring turning takes place between friends.

SWEATIN' IT OUT

Comfort is the name of the game for seniors on Sweats Day. Some students don their gym clothes. Others arrive at school wearing what they slept in. Many dress as usual in their everyday casual wear. All agree, however, that a wonderful feeling of freedom pervails.

FRIENDS MAKE IT ALL WORTHWHILE

Dear Friend,

After all this time, what can I say? We've said it all. Through the years, our friendship has grown stronger and stronger. I know nothing will ever break that bond. We've shared memorable times — times that make us laugh and times that made us cry. We have had our share of disagreements, but somehow we always manage to stick together.

It's you that I turned to when I needed to talk. I knew you would listen (and listen and listen). You gave me the confidence and strength to make it on my own. Yet, when you said "I'll be there," you were behind me all the way. Our friendship is based on honesty and trust. And that's something I'll be grateful for always.

Remembering all the advice and all we have experienced, I realize how much we have grown. Thank you for everything, friend. You will always be a part of my life.

Carrie Bregman and Jill Craft show what friendship is all about.

WELCOME SPECIAL OLYMPIANS!

In keeping with tradition, the world's greatest athletes gather every four years to compete for the coveted Olympic gold medals. Major television networks spend millions of dollars to broadcast these spectacular Games. At South, too, an inspiring athletic competition has become a tradition. This annual event, however, does not draw the attention of major television networks. Rather, it involves a network of students and staff — people who care.

(Fade to April 30, 1983)

It is a sunny Saturday, and the Special Olympics is about to begin for the fourth consecutive year at South. Special Olympian "Junior" Boyd lights the ceremonial torch as South's band belts out the theme from ROCKY. Both participants and spectators sense the excitement ahead.

More than 500 South students and staff have turned out for the event. Working tirelessly, Mrs. Pauline Capobianco, Mrs. Betty Mazzio, and Mr. Harry Kagan, South teachers, have coordinated the entire event. Nearly 600 Special Olympians from twelve different county agencies compete in athletic competitions, including softball throw and track and field events. Busy volunteers get athletes to their events, keep time, present awards, and give out a superabundance of hugs.

Special Olympians are people who may spend much of their lives on the sidelines. On this day, however, they star on the field, winning everyone's respect and admiration.

WE'VE GOT THE BEAT

No matter where we are, or what we are doing, music enriches our lives. For the Clarkstown South High School Band, this is especially true. To these musicians, band provides an opportunity not only to perfect their skill in playing an instrument, but a chance to make special friends.

School concerts, football games, and Special Olympics are among the events at which band performs. The band's program, under the direction of Mr. William Garbinsky, music department chairman, is a major attraction at South. As long as these spirited musicians remain enthusiastic, music will continue to play an important part in life at South.

Hold On To Your Dreams

Everyone has dreams — hopes for the future and memories from the past. These dreams give us goals to work for and lend purpose to our lives. Students work to achieve many dreams, often in areas other than academics. Some enjoy expressing themselves through art, and others choose music.

As we look to the future, we usually see a very practically planned-out life. We have dreams, however, which encompass this and much more. Dreams give us reasons to keep striving and great hope for times to come.

We need to hold on to our dreams. Dreams enrich our lives.

MOMENTS

1984

Hope for the future: Pat Olivo, Rob Lowe, and Debbie Dente.

Big Brother is watching.

In 1948, George Orwell wrote the novel 1984 to forecast his idea of the future. Today, many people say that this is not what Orwell predicted, but they would be surprised at how many of the concepts foretold have materialized. He predicted think tanks, improved missiles and bombs, self-propelled bombs, extreme defoliants, rapid data bands, voice analyzers, public telescreens, and artificial insemination. We take such things for granted, but in 1948 there were non-existent. 1984 is here in more ways than one.

Today's high-school students are the decision-making population of the future. We must be able to choose which advances and innovations are appropriate to make our world a better place. Orwell warned us of one possibility, but we can create another.

Afterschool sports are an integral part of high-school life. Students involved in sports get priceless experience both in working with a team and in reaching for a goal. Students who choose to be spectators also enjoy the thrill of competition.

Sporting events often bring surprises. People may startle themselves with an exceptional performance. A hard-working team may pull an upset victory. Dedication, spirit, and talent ignite in each athlete, bringing unexpected success and personal victory.

The 1983 Girls' Spring Tennis Team served up a spectacular season, smashing the rest of the county with nine wins and one loss (nobody's perfect). They were named PSAL tri-champions along with Ramapo and Suffern.

The team earned some special recognitions during the season. Coach Ken Holvig became Coach-of-the-Year, and Sharon Chang won the position of first team all-county for her ace performances throughout the glorious season.

With great energy, Stacey Berg awaits the serve.

Reflecting on the girls' volleyball season, Mr. Alan Campora, their coach, says: "It was a rebuilding year to teach the basic skills needed, but the season turned out to be a pleasant surprise by our qualifying for the Section 9 tournament." The girls, in fact, did more than qualify — they tied for third.

According to Stacey Berg, a member of the team, "We weren't surprised. The team knew we could have a successful season." Helped by the superior setting ability of Sue O'Leary and Jennifer Rosario, along with the smashing spikes of Judi Kolka, Diane Wildenberg, Beth Price, and Denise Guthenberg, the team proved to be successful time and time again.

With the leadership of co-captains Judi Klein and Denise Guthenberg, the girls finished with a 10-7 record. They hope to startle the opposition with several surprises next year.

The 1983 girls' varsity softball team completed a successful 9-12 season. This was an eight-win improvement over the previous season. Tri-captains Jaime Vanderlinde, Stacey Murphy, and Jean Kiernan provided enthusiastic leadership.

In his first year as coach, Mr. Dick Hale selected Tara Cavanagh (.385 batting average) as the Most Valuable Player. Both Tara and Stacey were selected to all-county honorable mention.

Sophomores Alex Gonzalez, Dorothy Mullane, and Sherry Span had good seasons. Juniors Leslie Chertok and Janet Vilece rounded out the team with their strong fielding.

The future looks bright for this hardworking team and coach.

Coach Katchmar tests the wind.

"I guess you could say they ran for the triple crown," reminisces Coach Gerald Katchmar about the 1983 boys' spring track team. Along with Dr. Arthur Lebofsky, he and Coach José St. Victor coached the team to victory in the division, the county, and Section 9.

The team's depth and numbers enabled the boys to rack up points across the board, and first and second place finishes put South one step ahead of its competitors. Top scorers of the season included Dan Glynn, Steve Monzillo, and Scott Allan in the distance races; Ken Rosengrant, Steve McKiernan, Joe Bergen, and Roy Goldwasser in the sprints; and Howard Eisenberg and Shaun Gilroy in the field events.

The comaraderie among the "spud men" created a special atmosphere for the team, and was a contributing factor to their success. Each member ran for the team, not just for himself, making the season, in the words of a favorite team expression, "all righta!"

Meshing Together

After losing many starters from the highly successful 1982 Viking lacrosse team, the future for the 1983 team was not too promising. Made up of many underclassmen, the team lacked experience. But, along with Mr. Michael Colucci, returning to the head coach position after a six-year absence, the team looked forward to the challenge of a new season. With Kevin Lawler, Chris Griffin, Kevin Lyons, and Pat Barry the only returning starters, Coach Colucci began to form a solid base for the upcoming season.

The attack — made up of Kevin Lawler, Kevin Lyons and a combination of John Murray, Keith Sullivan, and James Byrnes — was the most experienced part of the team. The attack combined for over 100 goals and 50 assists. Kevin Lawler and Kevin Lyons received all-county honors.

The midfields — anchored by Pat Barry, Rich Frey, and PeeWee Porter — showed good promise and improved steadily as the season progressed. And second line, Tom Gormley, Joe Reichling and Mike DiScala, did not fail when called upon to relieve the first line. Rich Frey, the team's record leading scorer, made second team all-county, and Pat Barry received an honorable mention award.

The defense, led by Chris Griffin, a four-year letterman, had a slow start, but progressed steadily. With senior Neil Mullane, the defense became one of the best in the county. Sophomore Liam O'Rourke and junior Brian Lemm earned the other starting spots, meshing together to form a solid framework. Neil Mullane and Chris Griffin were recognized as all-county performers for their great efforts during the season.

Although the young team got off to a slow start, they came into their own as they gained experience. The team finished with a 10-8 record, and a third place finish in the PSAL. With many players returning, the team is looking forward to the future. Viking lacrosse — catch it!

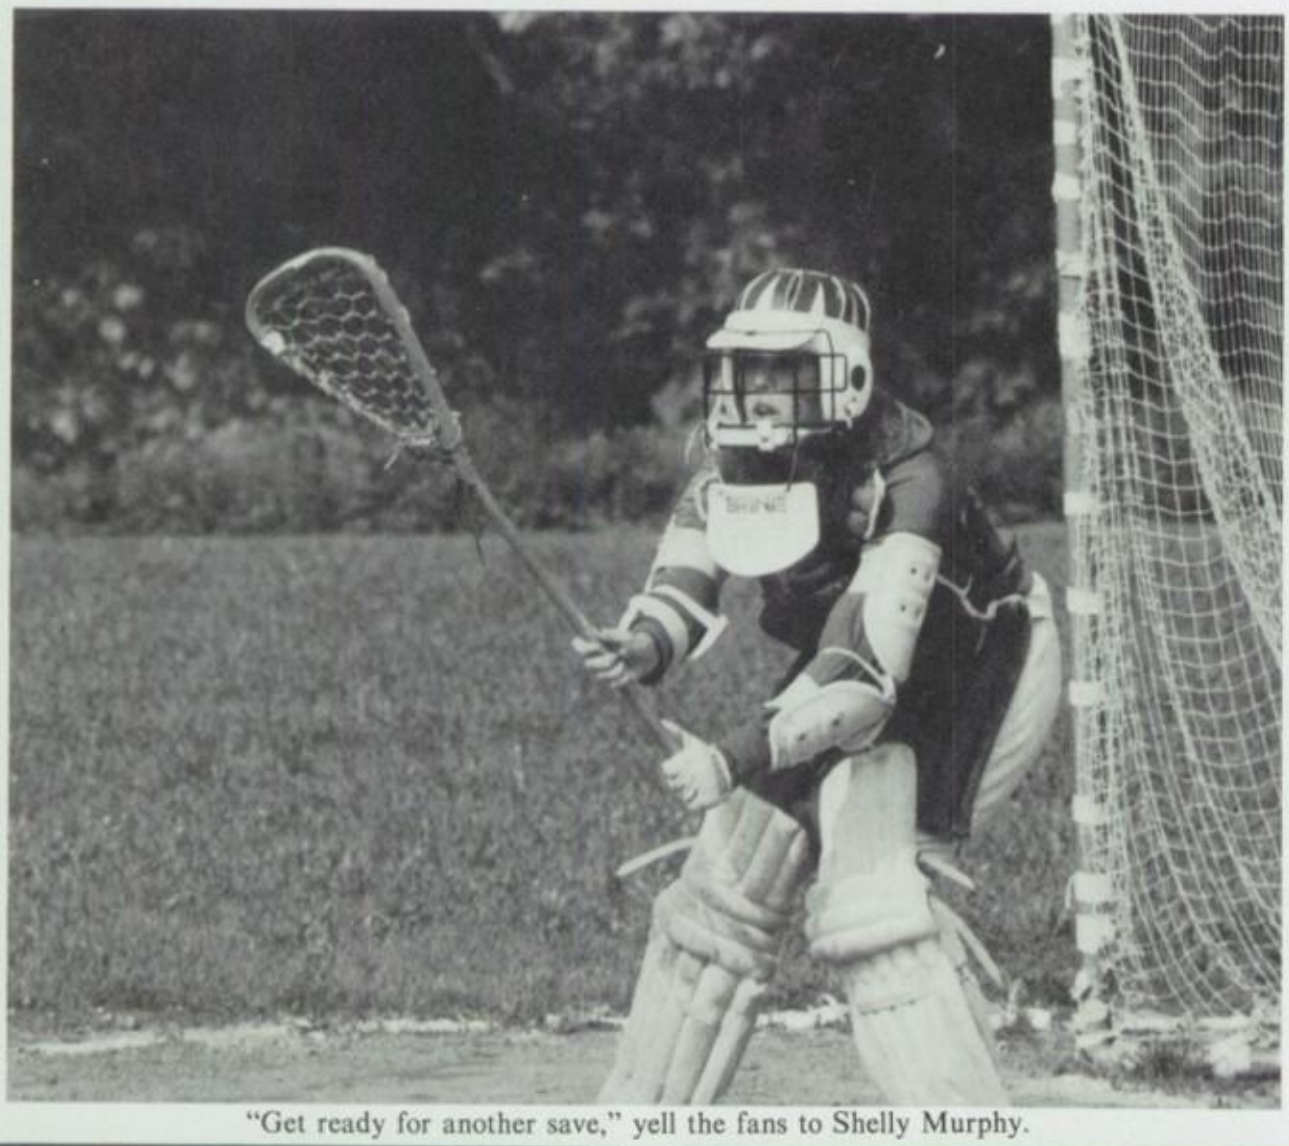
ON THE MOVE!



"Get ready for another save," yell the fans to Shelly Murphy.

The girls' lacrosse team underwent a tremendous rebuilding season. Although they finished the season with a 4-6 record, they showed great talent. Mary Prevot made first team all-county. Teammate Diane Diener won the Bagliere Scholarship and all-county honorable mention. Winning all-league selections were Connie McTiernan, Jackie O'Brien, Mary Cappaccino, and Shelly Murphy.

Showing great improvement, the team reached the sections only to lose to Suffern, a team they had beaten in league games. They lost in the last 25 seconds of the game.

From beginning to end, the girls' spring track team spelled success. Led by tri-captains Cathy Shiel, Sharon Smith, and Theresa Valenti, the team defeated Clarkstown North and Ramapo in their first two meets. They went on to end the season by overtaking Spring Valley and Suffern, thereby remaining undefeated.

Highlighting the season, the Lady Vikes won the National Division. All-county honors were given to Glynis Lloyd, first team; Theresa Valenti and Ann Marie Reilly, second team; and Cathy Shiel and Patty Min, third team.

The team, encouraged and guided by Mr. Ray Roswell, coach, has brought excitement and pride to South.

"Last season's juniors showed a lot of promise on the varsity level, and gave us an indication of what we can expect to be a much brighter season this year," explains varsity baseball coach Tom DePatto, whose young Viking team finished the 1983 season with a 5-16 record. Commenting about this year's seniors, he adds, "We have with us now the nucleus of a strong winning team."

The '83 season gave these players their first taste of losing, having finished 23-2 the previous year on the junior varsity level, and winning the post-season tournaments. This cast of juniors survived the trials and tribulations of the frustrating season, and hope to avenge what has taken place.

A positive side to South's overall play in '83 lies in the strength of the pitching staff, which compiled a team ERA of nearly 3.00. Ace Brian Murphy, along with steady performers Scott Krzykowski and Bob Zottolli, did more than their share for the Vikes. Krzykowski is a player who did it all as the saying goes. He was pitcher, third baseman, and outfielder on occasion, and added a better than .300 bat to the lineup. Left-hander Bob Zottoli was among the top strikeout pitchers in the league with his blend of a good fastball, curve, and knuckle-curve.

In the department of commitment and determination, no player epitomizes more than Phil Sprio. He had a never-quit attitude and steady play.

Chuck Vaccarino, South's second baseman, thinks the team benefited from a year of varsity experience.

Anthony DiMarsico played well offensively and defensively. He was a talented centerfielder, who hit an impressive .349 his first varsity year. His play was honored with an all-county honorable mention.

According to Coach DePatto, "These juniors had to make up their minds to go out and play good baseball, or not go out at all. I think they've proven to me that they can play and that they can win."

Largely a young and inexperienced team in '83, they came into the '84 season with a year of experience and a score to settle with the rest of the league. This Viking team has a good attitude, and they've got their minds on winning.

Looking To The Future . . .

S. Murphy saves the day!

With the loss of eight starting seniors, the girls' field hockey team had a great task of rebuilding ahead of them. According to Ms. Virginia Geerdes, coach, the team has improved tremendously in both depth and talent.

In the process of rebuilding, the team found itself one all-county first team all-conference A goalie, Shelly Murphy, and two honorable mentions, co-captains Jane Garner and Margaret Clifford. Reconstruction would not have been complete, however, without members of the hill.

The future looks bright for the young and talented team, and hopes are high for bringing the county trophy back to South.

With great effort, Eileen McCabe handles the ball.

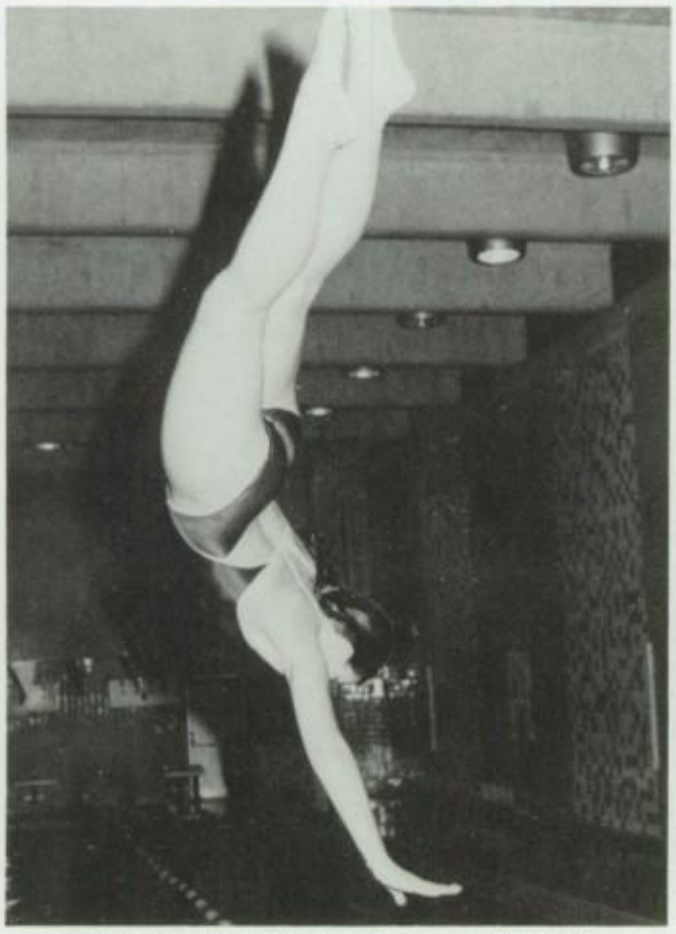
WINNING WAVES:



Jeanine Romano shows her great diving form.

Stroke harder is what team veteran Pat Olivo tells herself.

Officially ranked Number One in New York State, the girls' swim team proved too formidable for their opponents. Under the direction of Ms. Kathy Nowell, coach, they finished the season undefeated for the third year in a row. Other county teams pleaded no contest to South's awesome tide, as the team overwhelmed the opposition 11-0. Tri-captains were Kristine Dahm, Maureen Horan, and Jeanine Romano.

All-county selections include Hillary Jacobs, Stacey Moran, Pat Olivo, and Colleen Sullivan, all members of the second place 400 yard freestyle relay team at the intersectional meet; divers Jeanine Romano and Jackie Vituli, and Section 9 record holder Kristine Dahm. Carlene Capobianco and Beth Capobianco received honorable mention for all-county.

Undefeated swim team has a lot to smile about.

Tri-captain Kris Dahm shows her awesome breast-stroke.

KEEPING UP TO PAR

Concentrating hard, Jon McMillen sets up for a shot.

South's golf team underwent a major rebuilding season. Last year's graduation took its toll on the team, for they lost five starters. The team finished with a 6-8-1 record, placing fifth out of 11 teams in the county tournament. Two victories were impressive upsets: 6-2 over eventual Conference B champ, Tappan Zee, and 5½-2½ over Suffern.

Six players had averages of 50 or better, with Andy Benoit at 43.3 leading the team, followed by Greg Zengo, Paul Guarino, Jon McMillen, and Jim Hannon. Andy Benoit had the low individual score in three matches; Greg Zengo and Paul Guarino had one each.

Andy Benoit finished fourth out of 66 in the county tournament.

Doubles player Maria Jablonski swings hard.

With a record of 14-0, 10-0 in the PSAL, the Viking girls' tennis team has a lot to be proud of. Along with a perfect sweep of Rockland teams, South defeated four tough Section One teams: Kingston, Mamaroneck, R.C. Ketchum, and Harrison.

South players took honors in both the county and Section 9 tournaments, sending five out of the nine girls from the section to the state tournament in Rochester. According to their coach, Mr. Ken Holvig, "hard work and determination is the key to the tennis team's success."

The team hopes to reign on the tennis courts for a long time to come.

Once again, the girls' soccer team booted their way to an impressive season, finishing with a 16-4 record. Under the leadership of Mr. Martin Piccinich, coach, Viking offense proved awesome to the opposition by scoring a record 73 goals. Tri-captains were Jennifer Miani, Becky Miller, and Annemarie Reilly.

Janet Vilece, team MVP and team all-conference selection, led the charging offense, along with Mary Jo Murphy and Liz Gadry, all-conference nominees. Alex Gonzalez and Jennifer Miani, all-conference selections, anchored the defense. Bolstering a solid midfield were Adriane Gross and Becky Miller, first team all-conference selections.

The defensive line, led by goalie Annemarie Reilly, provided a wall too formidable for opponents to penetrate. When the dust had settled, South's opposition had been able to score only 13 goals in 20 games.

Although the Viking varsity football team ended with an overall record of 5-4, it was an impressive season. The team faced many tough opponents, including the number two team in Connecticut, St. Joe's. In the PSAL, the Vikings finished with a 3-2 record and second place. The young team led the league in total rushing offense and in total rushing defense.

The offense, led by senior quarterback Joe Taccetta, improved greatly as the season progressed. The backfield was led by senior tri-captain Chris Michie and sophomore sensation Jim Cann, who finished second in the league for rushing yardage. Blocking for the backs up front was a potentially powerful offensive line that lacked experience. Center Marc Comito, anchorman of the line, explains: "The inexperience of the line got the offense off to a slow start. As the season progressed, they improved each week to the point where we provided effective blocking almost every play."

Senior tri-captain Anthony Kissik was given all-county recognition for his outstanding performance as guard throughout the year, and halfback Jim Cann also received all-county honors.

Finding a Way

The defense, led by senior tri-captains Brian Lemm and Anthony Kissik, remained solid throughout the year.

"The defense did a great job all year. We especially shut down the powerhouse offenses of the league, whether it was through running or passing," says Brian Lemm, who received all-county and all-state recognition as defensive end. "Also our coaching staff did a great job," Brian adds.

The coaching staff consisted of head coach Mo Scro and assistants John Kohler and Al Cann.

"Our coaching staff really did a good job. They always knew what was going on and what problems we were having," explains Anthony Kissik.

Highlights of the season included the heartbreaking one-point loss to the number two team in the state, and an impressive win over archrival Clarkstown North, ending the season on a high note.

Led by senior Scott Allan, the Viking boys' cross country team had a successful season, placing fourth in the Section 9 meet. Scott, one of the premiere runners selected for first team all-county, was South's Most Valuable Player, finishing second at the Southeastern Conference Championship and third in the Section 9 meet.

Junior Ken Corsig also had outstanding performances, placing fourteenth at the Sections and finishing fifth in the county meet. For his effort, he received the coaches' award. Ken, along with teammate Rich McCarthy, was selected to all-conference. Rich, a junior, finished strongly in both the county and divisional meets.

Rounding out the varsity squad were junior Chris Perretta, sophomore Ray Alicea, and freshmen Brian Condon and Bill Derasmo — all with spirited performances.

The young team, hardworking and optimistic, hopes to be a strong contender in the future, according to Coach Tom DePatto.

Although the 1983 girls' cross country team, coached by Mr. Tom DePatto and Dr. Arthur Lebofsky, didn't have a particularly outstanding season, the girls managed to enjoy themselves. Captain Glynis Lloyd and her seven teammates formed a special camaraderie, which made the hard work all worthwhile. Sweating it out through interval training and those other long workouts, consoling a friend after a disappointing race, or rejoicing in a teammate who reached a goal created a strong bond among the runners.

The girls' geniality extended past just working together as a team. They often gathered at parties after the meets. The athletes enjoyed stretching to music prior to a race, until Coach DePatto ordered: "No more bopping before you run!"

Cross country is a sport involving pain and dedication to hard work. But what will be remembered are the friendships and the good times.

Despite a slow start, the boys' varsity soccer team, coached by Mr. Glenn Nelson, finished strong with a respectable 4-4-2 record in PSAL and qualified for a berth in the Section 9 playoffs. Highlighting the season was a shocking 1-0 upset of Ramapo, then ranked ninth in the state. The game marked the first time all year that Ramapo had been shut out.

At the playoffs, the South team upended third-seeded Washingtonville 1-0. In an extremely hard fought game, they then bowed to Ramapo, 3-0 in overtime.

The Viking offense attack was led by junior Vinnie Guido with eight goals, followed by fellow junior Vinnie McNulty and tri-captain Marc Cosimano with four goals each. Also aiding in the attack were senior Chris Schaub and sophomore Peter Eizenhopf. Anchoring midfield were tri-captain Jim Cunneen, sophomore Tim Abrecht, juniors Ray Jiminez and Mike Garvey, and senior Mike Marusic.

Defensively for South, goalkeeper and tri-captain Dave Krell, senior fullbacks Charlie Murphy, Dan Derella, and sweeper Bob Sayre made life difficult for opposing forwards. In addition, juniors Mike Donnelly and John Busher, along with senior Tom Condon, played exceptionally well on defense.

Hitting the Mats

"Hard work, dedication, and the will to win" characterize the boys' wrestling team, according to their coach, Mr. Peter McGuire. The matmen finished with a record of 7-3, guided by co-captains Mhill Nikollaj, a senior, and Peter Valois, a junior.

Heavyweight Valois highlighted the season with a six-second pin, tying the county record. Amazingly, Valois's record tied his brother's record of a few years back.

Valois and 91-pound Alan Rabinowitz, a junior, combined as the book-end couple to chalk up many points for the Vikes. Nikollaj, the team's 132-pounder and only senior on the team, "dedicated himself totally to the sport, making practices times of hard work — times which paid off in the end," according to John Lusuriello, a junior on the team.

Other standouts on the squad were juniors Chris Bierker and Freddy Massa. Starting every match, Evan Guttman proved to be the season's most outstanding sophomores.

According to the team, Mr. McGuire and junior varsity coach Michael Solicito, with "their dedication and wrestling know-how," made the team a success.

With the return of so many experienced starters in the line-up, Mr. McGuire predicts next year will be just as promising.

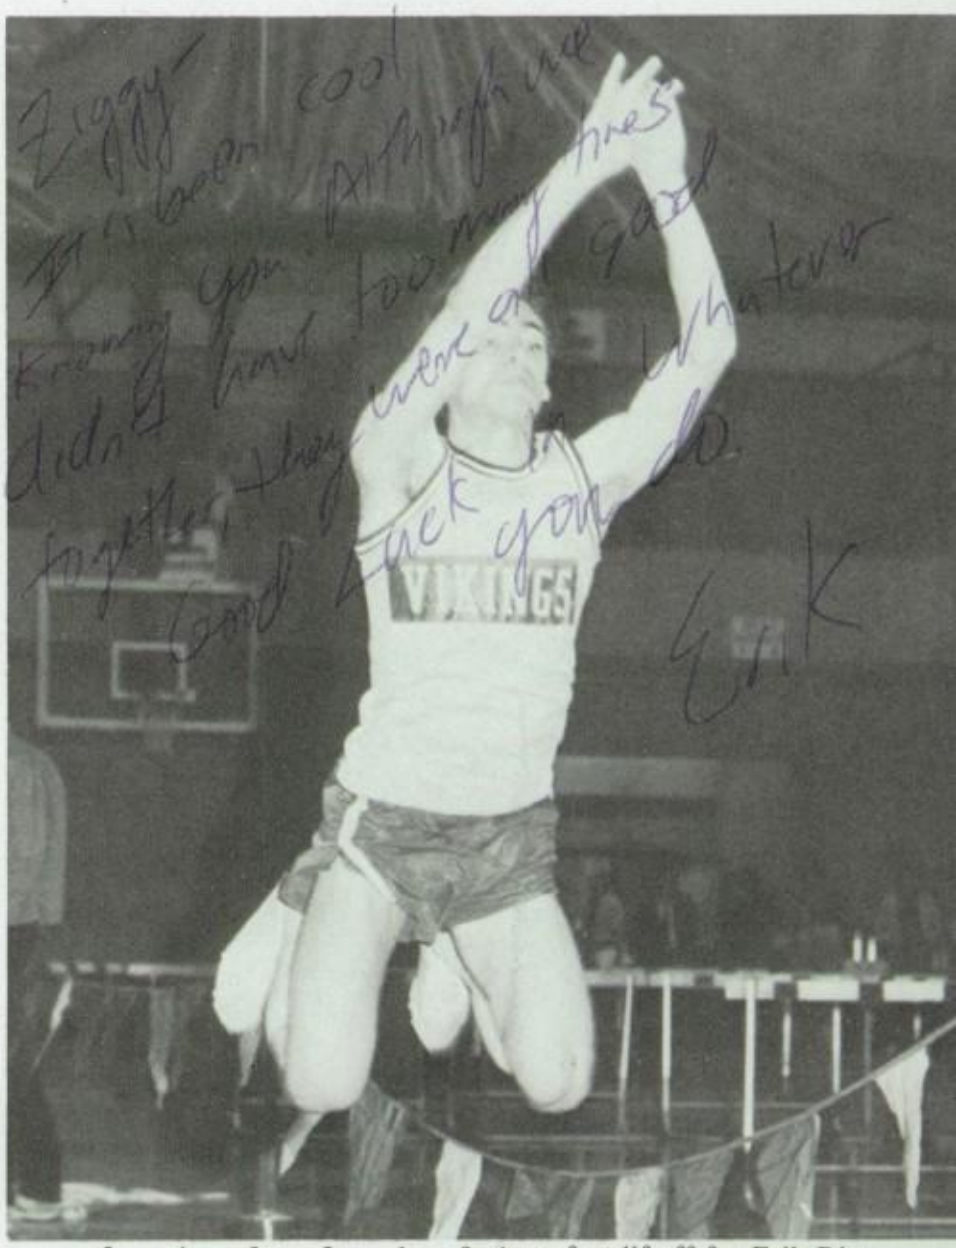
Running With Heart

An indoor track meet is an unusual experience. People who happen into the Rockland Community College field house during a meet may find themselves remaining to the end, captivated by the excitement. In the Southwest corner of the building, a motley crew of teenagers can be seen, lounging about in multi-colored sweatsuits. The team is unidentifiable until they all jump up and begin to cheer for one of the competitors on the track — a Clarkstown South runner. This team is obviously the Vikings.

The Effort

The runner on the track is Vince Milaccio in the first leg of the 880-relay. He has taken the lead and given the baton to Joe Bergen. As Joe runs by, the team roars again. The view is momentarily blocked by a large green curtain on the infield. Suddenly, Eric Rios emerges into sight with a good lead. He sprints around the track and hands off to Roy Goldwasser. Goldwasser holds off an approaching opponent and crosses the finish line. The tape streams behind him like a victory flag.

Meanwhile, on the infield, Patty Min has won the hurdles; Chris Goodman has scored in the long jump and shot put; Adam Burkowsky has cleared five feet, nine inches in the high jump; and Charlie Brack has taken first place in the pole vault.



5 . . . 4 . . . 3 . . . 2 . . . 1 . . .0: A perfect liftoff for Erik Rios.

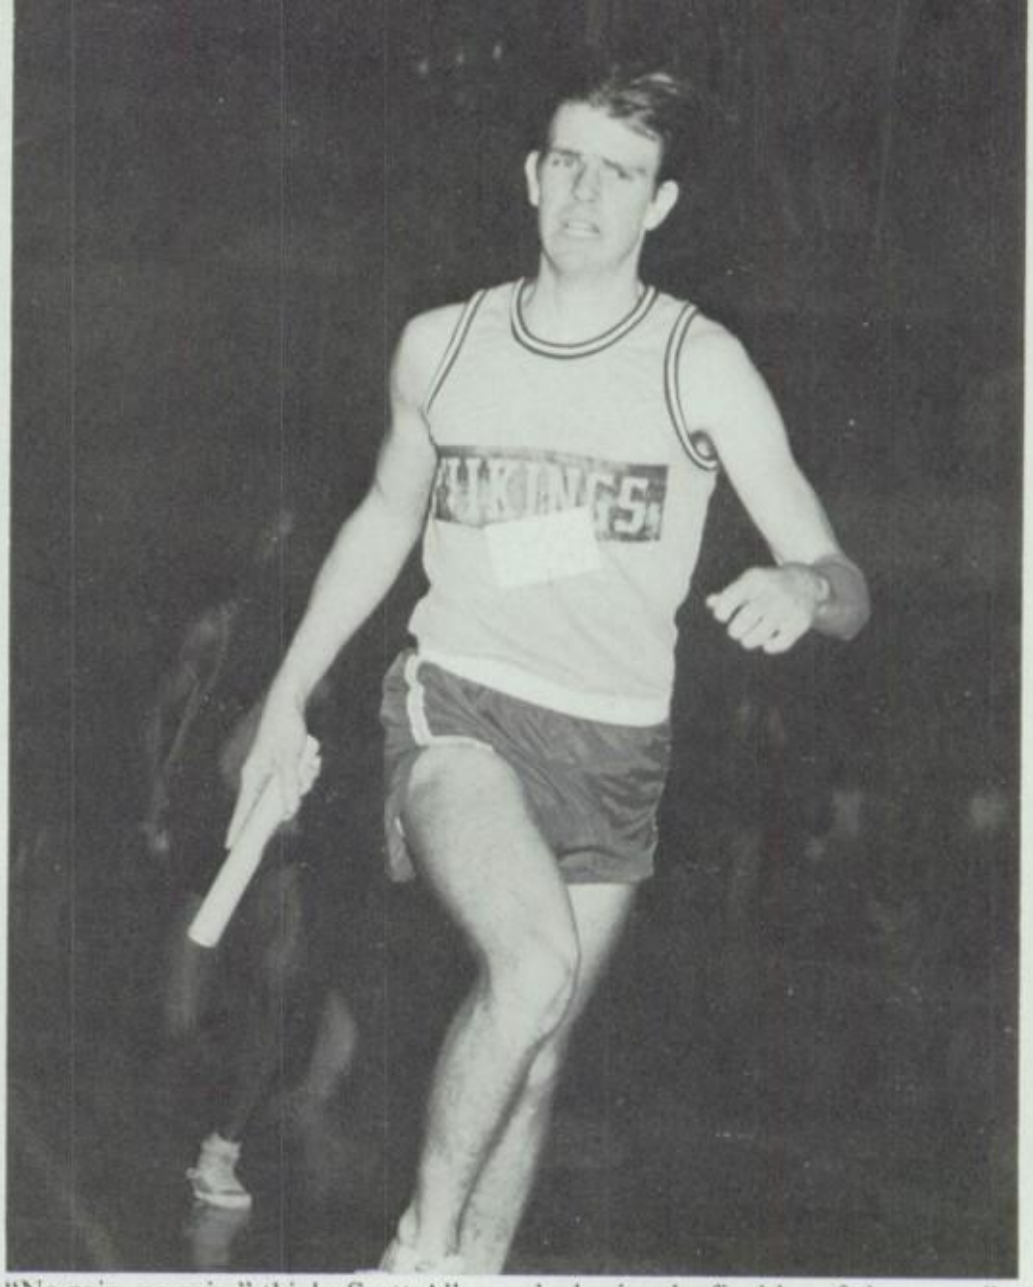
Fabrice Garino and Joe Bergen poised for the starting gun.

Donnell Brown: Long-jumping.



"No pain, no gain," thinks Scott Allan as he begins the final leg of the two-mile relay.

The Statistics

By the end of the meet, Theresa Valenti has racked up points in the 300- and 600-yard dashes. Diane Gallo, Josephine Casey, MaryJo Murphy, and Lisa Budnick have have run a personal best two-mile relay. Mike Wasserman has won the hurdles. The girls' 880-relay of Patty Min, Peggie Harkin, Andrea Hammer, and Theresa Valenti are second. And Scott Allen has placed in the sixteen-hundred meter run. South's tremendous underclassmen section has also added points to the team score and promise to the team's future.

The Results

South finishes the season with girls and boys both third in the county and ninth in conference A — the boys, a close third place in Section 9; the girls, a strong fifth. Pride shines on the faces of Coaches Katchmar, Roswell, and Lynch, and Doctor Lebofsky, a loyal friend.

The Viking boys' basketball team impressed a competitive Rockland County with a 6-4 record. Their season was highlighted by a double defeat of archrival Clarkstown North. Of his team, Coach Martin Piccinich says, "I have a great deal to be proud of."

Shooting Stars

The girls' varsity basketball team got off to a slow start, but soon showed what experience and talent can do. Guided by Mr. John Bladel in his first year as varsity coach, senior tri-captains Jennifer Miani, Becky Miller, and Annemarie Reilly joined forces with junior Dorothy Mullane and sophomore Danielle Scarlatta to pull off some stunning upsets. Their overtime defeat of state-ranked North Rockland, 57-49, provided the highlight of the season.

Not thought of as contenders for their division title, the Vikes fought hard and tied for honors. Forwards Laila Braaten and Karen Walker, freshmen, and Karen Hoke, a junior, combined with guards Gina Edmond, a freshman, Alexandra Gonzalez and Donna Hogarty, juniors, and Debbie Morgan, a sophomore, to contribute to the team's success.

Having lost 12 players to graduation, the South ice hockey team faced this year with a young and inexperienced squad. The girls' gymnastics team survived the season with a 2-7 record. In addition to being a basically young and inexperienced team — senior Carolyn Juris and juniors Sabrina Herman, Chris Maraia, Kathy Moran, and Christine Stoker were the only upperclassmen on the team — the Vikes also had to cope with equipment problems and no coach.

Despite these problems, co-captains Sabrina Herman and Christine Stoker and Julie Eng, a sophomore; Chris Maraia, a junior; and Susan Stoker, a freshman, turned in excellent performances.

Improving On The Slopes

South's ski team originated five years ago through the efforts of Mr. Robert Martin, their coach. After several seasons in last place, the nine girls and 17 boys on the team defeated archrival North in a meet at Sterling Forest on February 2.

According to Anne Eidet, a sophomore and two-year member of the team, the victory was made possible by training for three and one-half hours every day for several weeks. Increased practice schedules and "more dedication on the part of the skiers" made the season a success, Anne adds.

The team looks forward to next year and "anyone willing to learn and compete in this exciting sport is welcome," says Christine Nestor, another sophomore on the team.

Splishing and Splashing

Like the girls' swim team, the Clarkstown South boys' swim team also had a perfect record. However, the boys' record was slightly different from the girls'. While the girls swam to a record of 11-0, the boys swam to a record of 0-12.

One of the reasons for the girls' success was the high-caliber swimmers the girls had. Many of the girls swim on AAU teams that have high intensity workouts every day. Sometimes, these teams have two workouts a day. On the other hand, many of the boys don't swim on outside teams. Many coaches of AAU teams won't allow boys on their teams to swim high school because they miss too many of their workouts. The boys also miss many meets because the high school season is right in the heart of the AAU meet schedule. Swimmers aren't allowed to compete for both teams during the week. They can swim AAU meets on weekends if there are no high school meets on that day. This keeps many of the best boy swimmers at South from coming out for the team.

Another reason the boys weren't as successful as the girls was the size difference in the two teams. Whereas the girls had about 30 people on the team, the boys had only 17. And only a handful of these 17 boys swim on outside teams. A few had never even swum before, and many swim only during the high school season. Because of the small size of the team at many of the meets, the boys' team couldn't put three people in each event or enter more than one relay because they didn't have enough people. As a result, the team lost many valuable points.

The boys' team, however, does have a few bright spots. On these is senior captain Mike Dari. He is a two-time all-cou backstroker and has been to the state championships in the ba stroke for the past two years. This year it looks as if he wil back at the state championships again. In addition, he may add the butterfly to his list of events. Dari also leads off medley relay that has been to states the past three years. year the relay has a very good chance of being back at the st again. Besides Dari in the backstroke, the relay includes Da Olivo in the breaststroke, Pat Allen in the butterfly, and S Riggs in the freestyle. Jason Ludasiewicz and Tad Trias share duties of the freestyle leg with Riggs. Everybody except Dari be back again next year to compete for South. Other swimm for South included seniors Howard Sysler, Dan Novotny (div and Dan Cooney (diver); juniors Jason Engelhardt and Martin; sophomores Gregg Acocelli, Mike Lyden, and A Abatangelo; freshmen Jon McPartland, and Brian Rosen; eighth-grader Derrick Lin.

In the boys' meets this year, though, there weren't m brights spots. The closest they came to victory was nine poin North Rockland. The low point of the season was when South to forfeit a possible victory when the team thought the meet w week later than it really was. Mrs. Ellen Nowell of West N coached the swim team. Coincidentally, her daughter K coached the girls to their perfect record.

Activities

Activities encourage each person to express his or her particular forte, be it in sports, student government, newspaper reporting, a club, or any combination of these. Involvement in extracurricular activities often takes an unexpected twist. Someone may join a club because it looks good on college applications, and yet find he or she really enjoys it. Activities bring together people with similar interests, and members are often surprised at the special relationships which evolve.

The freedom to pursue any unexpected turn is what attracts many students to get involved. Commitment is made with no penalities for altering it. Perhaps, the best part of activities is that they are truly optional.

Two honor societies in our school distinguish outstanding students: National Honor Society and Mu Alpha Theta.

Honor Society, a chapter of a national organization founded in 1921, admits students on the basis of four qualities: scholarship, leadership, character, and service. A student may be elected to honor society in either the junior or senior year. Juniors need at least an average of 90. In addition to scholastic achievement, extracurricular activities to the school and faculty recommendations are used to determine election to honor society. Students are officially made members of the society at an induction ceremony in January.

According to Mrs. Rose Schwartz, adviser to honor society, members must continue to show their willingness to help in school activities. "It's a reward for previous achievements, but, more important, a commitment to continue to excel in the four areas — scholarship, leadership, character, and service."

Mu Alpha Theta, the mathematics honor society, is a club made of students who have proven outstanding mathematical ability by achieving an average of 90 or above in both algebra and geometry.

According to Mr. Jack Stapleton, the club's adviser, Mu Alpha Theta is designed to enrich students' interests and talents through presentations and problem-solving competitions. Topics presented have included computer talks and the mathematical content of Rubik's cube. Being a member of Mu Alpha Theta is a wonderful opportunity for talented mathematicians to uncover their creativity and use their abilities.

Senior Play

On a wintry Friday night in December, the South auditorium was filled with people whispering, watching, waiting. Muffled sounds from behind the curtain hushed as the lights descended, and the first act began.

As the show commenced, the true talent of the performers was immediately evident. The South rendition of James Reach's David and Lisa was a hit from the very start, and the seriousness of the subject matter was clearly presented by the cast.

The play describes the romance that emerges between David and Lisa, two students in a school for troubled children. Daniel Murphy's performance as the xenophobic David was more than convincing; Daniel excellently portrayed David's constant fear of being touched. Robin Goldwasser's performance as the schizophrenic Lisa demonstrated the two sides of Lisa's personality with extreme clarity.

The rest of the cast was by no means a disappointment either. Erik Rios performed well as a porter in a train station who is verbally assaulted by David for touching his elbow to guide him. Issac Ho shone in his role as Dr. Alan Swinford, the psychiatrist who helps David overcome his fears. Adding brilliant support to the school atmosphere were Jordana Nejman, Megan Yates, Heidi Cohen, Donna-Jean Tedesco, Sergey Buleyev, and Robert Levine, who played members of the school staff.

Dan Murphy and Robin Goldwasser: Two teenagers trying to communicate.

Rich Katz playing an ineffectual father.

Jena Rose plays a troubled teen.

atty Marrero offers unwanted motherly advice.

Jane Recine and Michael Cohen: Acting tough.

Actors make the audience understand troubled teenagers.

But the most moving scenes of the entire drama took place in the classrooms of the school, where Michael Cohen, Jena Rose, Patricia Ann Milazzo, Russell Glickman, Jane Recine, and Daniel Cooney acted the parts of other troubled students. They portrayed their own inner turmoils through their actions throughout the play.

But if the school scenes were moving, the home scenes can only be described as vivid. Richard Katz and Patricia Marrero, in their roles as David's parents, vividly demonstrated how the incessant arguing which had taken place throughout David's childhood had added to his emotional problems.

In the final scenes of the play, when Lisa has run out into the world, she finds what people are really like. When she tries to make friends with a young girl, played by Melissa Mansdorf, Lisa finds only torment. Barbara Creagh, providing comic relief in her role as the girl's mother, accuses Lisa of trying to run away with the girl. The last two scenes of the play shows how helpless Lisa is on her own. When two boys, excellently portrayed by Richard Moscarelli and Kenneth Piper, attack her, it is only David's arrival which saves her from the hoods. David and Lisa abandon their fears. Lisa puts aside her split personality, and David asks Lisa to hold his hand. Thanks to the directing by Ms. Kathleen Davies and Angela Minolfo, the production left not a dry eye in the theater.

Mrs. Eva Rubinstein's Spanish 4 classes spent the first three weeks of December selling lollipops. This may seem an unlikely assignment for high school seniors, but it was done as a fundraiser for the annual Fiesta Espanola.

After the lollipops sold out, each student was assigned a Spanish entrée to prepare. Students spent evenings in Waldbaums — buying Goya beans and tamales. The finished products were served cafeteria-style on the night of the big event.

Los estudiantes practiced singing, and a select group learned the Mexican hat dance.

On December 19, the Neophonic Ensemble began the evening at 7:30 in the lobby. After this, the visitors were led to a pseudo-night club — the cafeteria. Here, the students sang with Mrs. Rubinstein, who also performed a dazzling solo, and danced to entertain guests. Exotic food was served and door prizes were given out. The whole evening was a success.

'Girl Crazy' at South

With Broadway's My One And Only playing to sell-out audiences, it was more than appropriate for South's spring musical to be a George Gershwin revival, too. And so, on March 30 and 31, and April 6 and 7, Gershwin's Girl Crazy captivated audiences with its harmonious blend of comedy, music, and talent-filled entertainment.

The story takes place out West during the 1950's and involves the adventures of Johnny Churchill, a former television star currently taking a turn in local politics, and "Frisco" Kate, a sassy nightclub singer who wants to become more than just a friend to Johnny. Complete with a beautiful postmistress named Molly, a girl crazy Hungarian piano player, Zoli Mostel, and a host of small-time shady gamblers, the show features both well-paced entertainment and standard songs such as "I Got Rhythm," "Embraceable You," "But Not For Me," and "Strike Up the Band."

Principal cast members included Christine Cabot, Becca Cohen, Michael Cohen, and John Eisele. Peter Francovilla, Isaac Ho, and Rich Moscarelli appeared in supporting roles. The ensemble sported singing and dancing cowboys and cowgirls, including Melissa Mansdorf, Angela Paderon, Ken Piper, Eric Taubman, Michael Wechsler, and Richard Wilner. The all-girl quartet was made up of Sharon Gordon, Lisa Itkin, Angela Minolfo, and Wendy Wetstein.

According to cast members, South's Girl Crazy owed much of its success to Ms. Char Large, director, and Ms. Susan Blank, musical director. Throughout two months of rehearsal, both Ms. Large and Ms. Blank supported the cast, guiding them not only with their expertise, but with their encouragement and enthusiasm as well.

On Camera

"Lights, camera, action!"

Mr. Shuster instructs cameraman Rich Williams.

One of Clarkstown South's unique features is its Television Studio, the only one of its kind in the district. Under the direction of Mr. Hy Schuster and Mr. Jack Dos Santos, the studio is the home of the Clarkstown Central School District television group (C.C.S.D.) which shows the work of students in Clarkstown. The studio makes communication and production courses possible at South, and enriches many other courses with invaluable on-camera experience.

Various productions have originated from the studio: cablecast school football, basketball, and hockey games; a monthly district-wide news show; and an annual senior-class video.

Courses such as Art of Filmaking, American Legal Systems, Italian and Spanish 4, Public Speaking 12, and Journalism 12, also benefit from the television studio. Students videotape commercials, speeches, mock trials, and newscasts. Class interaction and cooperation produce not only a product but great comaraderie as well, and results often yield great levity — especially when classes view the outtakes!

Mr. Shuster: "Man the controls!"

Good

The band program at South encompasses a variety of musical interests, and the large number of in-school and extracurricular performing groups provide talented students with many hours of satisfaction and enjoyment. Of course, students must work hard and put in many hours of rehearsal and practice, but the immense gratification that they receive in return, they feel, is more than adequate compensation.

For members of the band, the school year begins with football season. South's Marching Band consists of only the most spirited and dedicated musicians. From September to November, these young troopers work frantically to learn numerous pieces of music. Every Saturday, they rise early and spend the morning practicing their formations. During the game they spur the team on with "Southern Pride" and other spirited selections, in addition to performing their usual pre-game and halftime shows.

Marching season is an arduous period for the band, with many factors acting to hinder the group's performance. For example, band uniforms — whose aerodynamic design has earned the band the nickname "human Q-Tips" — are cleverly tailored for maximum discomfort, allowing the musicians to enjoy heat prostration on warm days and yet also relish frostbite on cooler weekends. Nevertheless, Marching Band perseveres, and overcomes all obstacles to give performance after enjoyable performance. The marching unit also participates in a variety of yearly parades, and South has won several awards for excellence at these events.

'Helping Others . . . Adds a Human Dimension to Education'

We, at South, are concerned with things other than academ-cs. The Clarkstown South Community Service Club, CSCSC), now in its sixth year, has nearly 50 members. Once a eek, these altruistic students board their bus at 2:30 p.m., ound either for Letchworth Village in Thiells or Pomona lealth Center in Pomona. Once at Letchworth, the students go different cottages or to the hospital complex. They work with eople of all ages who have mental and, sometimes, physical andicaps, too. The students talk with the residents and play ames and sports with them. In addition, they help them to read, rite letters, and do puzzles. Volunteers polish the women's ails, tell stories, and give the institutionalized residents a sense what it is like in the world outside the institution. But students eceive great benefits, too. Mr. Harry Kagan, one of club's dvisers, says, "Helping others as a volunteer adds a human mension to the education of our students."

At the Pomona Health Center, a resident geriatric long-term cility, the members of CSCSC bring youthful enthusiasm to e elderly living there. Volunteers read the newspaper to the residents. In addition, they play cards, write letters, and talk with the residents. Now in their third year of going to the Pomona Health Center, student volunteers continue to enrich the lives of these elderly people who look forward to the club's weekly visits. Of the Pomona volunteers, Mr. Edward Moetzinger, another of the club's advisers, says, "Never have so few accomplished so much good with so little so enthusiastically for the love of humanity."

Meals on Wheels is another great service in which students at South participate. It is a non-profit, volunteer program of meal delivery to Rockland County residents who are unable to prepare their own meals because of illness, physical handicaps, or advanced age.

"It was on Thanksgiving Day of 1982 that I delivered my first meal on wheels, and I'm a tough cookie, but it brought tears to my eyes," says Mr. Gilbert Camacho, a teacher responsible for bringing Meals on Wheels to South. Since then, Mr. Camacho has encouraged more than 80 volunteers from South to bring meals to grateful Rocklanders.

The G.O. workers have the holiday spirit.

It's 2:01 and the G.O. store is crammed so full of students that it is difficult to get in. Most of these students are staying after for sports or other activities, although some are just hanging out. The majority will buy soda, cookies, and candy. The G.O. store, however, is more than just a place to buy food. Its inventory includes basic school supplies — pens, pencils, paper, rulers — along with gym suits, sweats, and school jackets. The G.O. store also sponsors two scholarships.

Originally the G.O. store was begun by the Business Department and overseen by Mr. Frederick Guiffreda. Later Mr. Eugene Bagliere took over the operation. Since his death, Mr. Alan Campora, a close friend, has continued the operation. Students come during free periods to volunteer their help.

The G.O. store is intended for the benefit of the students. Soda profits go towards two $500 scholarships — one to a football player and the other to a girls' lacrosse player. Both of these sports had been coached by Mr. Bagliere. Candy sales are used to purchase the other inventory. Since the sale of suits and sweats does not do as well, the candy sales help pay for the unsold goods. South jackets can be ordered at a lower price through the G.O. store. The store, a self-sufficient organization, does not profit from these sales.

Any leftover money goes to the General Organization. This fund is for all organizations and activities. Ultimately, the goal of the G.O. store is to have a large profit to go toward all funds.

People are the main components of high school — staff and students alike. Each is indispensable. We are often surprised at the interweaving relationships we have formed with other students and teachers. Golden memories come so unexpectedly, and yet remain so special to us all.

People

Zig,

Yes, I can write! This is your personal 1st person objective essay.

Once upon a time a nameless and spiritless person moved to the treetops. In the dismal and bored life cursed upon them a man arrived. It was totally his ship. Neither of them knew who they were or where they were going. And later floating apart for 2 years, they came together. This time in a different light. They were older, knew what they wanted and knew where they were going. But once again they had to part. But one day they will meet again and once again things will be different. I think the point of this story is that no matter how long it's been or how much we've changed I'll always be your friend.

Go out and get 'em,

Good Luck and see ya at the Pool!

Love,

Leslie

Mr. T.: We'll Miss You!

Coached by Mr. Tacchino, this 1954 Clarkstown High School basketball team finished in second place in the Section 9 tournament.

A mainstay at sports dinners, Mr. Tacchino presents an award to high-school student, Steve Drummond, now a sports writer for the Journal-News.

Clarkstown Central School District has its own Mr. T.; however, this Mr. T. doesn't wear flashy jewelry and fight crime. His name is Joseph Tacchino, and he has devoted himself to the development and successful operation of the interscholastic sports program.

Retiring after 37 years in Clarkstown, Mr. Tacchino has been Athletic Director since 1947, when there were fewer than 100 high-school students in Clarkstown. During these early years, he coached varsity soccer, basketball, cross-country, track, baseball, and bowling. He achieved his greatest success in soccer, coaching 10 championship teams. Two of his former soccer players were Mr. Glenn Nelson and Mr. Dennis Poszar, who are now the soccer coaches at Clarkstown South and Clarkstown North, respectively.

As school enrollments grew, so did Clarkstown's school sports program. Mr. Tacchino formed teams at the junior varsity and freshman levels in many sports. He played an instrumental role during the construction of the sports facilities at the junior high and, later, at Clarkstown South. He added sports such as golf, swimming, ice hockey, and skiing, which utilize off-campus facilities. Now, Mr. Tacchino believes that Clarkstown's sports program offers more variety than any other district provides in New York State.

Mr. Tacchino's dedication during the past 37 years stems from his strong belief in the importance of sports as "part of the total development of the youngster." He adds: "Sports encourage a student to become well-rounded, learn better public relations, and meet more people. Those who have participated in sports are generally more successful in life."

Mr. Tacchino will be sorely missed by Clarkstown Central School District's administration, coaches, and student-athletes whom he cared for so deeply.

Good luck, Mr. T.!

Peter McGuire, South's varsity wrestling coach, and Mike Solicito, the junior varsity coach, discuss the upcoming season with Mr. T.

Principal

LeRoy Conklin is a man who understands and enjoys a leadership role — a role he feels is predicated on respect, not fear. "When you're respected, then you've made it," he says.

For over 30 years, Mr. Conklin has been earning respect from students, parents, and staff in the Clarkstown Central School District. Beginning in January, 1954, as a social studies teacher at its high school — now North — he went on to become a part-time administrator at the junior high, then housed in North's Annex. When the present junior high was constructed in 1963, he served as assistant principal and soon after as principal of A-Wing. In 1980, he became principal at South — a transition he has enjoyed thoroughly.

"I wouldn't be in this profession if I didn't like kids," he says. He appreciates the maturity of students at South and welcomes conversations with them. Of students, he says: "I want them to feel confident with me. My doors are always open."

An advocate of school spirit, Mr. Conklin has sought to raise morale at South through several changes — from the addition of murals and plaques in the lobby and the creation of the leisure library to a much-needed senior center.

Mr. Conklin can be seen at many South events — academic, cultural, and athletic — and encourages both student and staff involvement. He remembers with great affection his coaching of football, tennis, and basketball before he became a principal.

Less known to the students at South is Mr. Conklin's military career. He recently retired with the rank of general in the Individual Retired Reserve. On this occasion, President and Mrs. Reagan honored him with a letter.

South students appreciate Mr. Conklin's leadership role at their school. He has earned their respect through his genuine concern for them.

Mr. LeRoy W. Conklin, our principal.

Mr. Conklin: With Mrs. Mary Gannon, his secretary of 12 years.

Mr. Conklin reviews the message board prepared by G.O. president Debbie Dente.

Assistant Principals

Gerold Bierker

Robert Rippa

Raymond Koplinka

Gerold Bierker — the name evokes an image in every student's mind of that forbidding figure, the one who catches wrongdoers in the act. Few realize, however, that the assistant principal cares deeply about young people.

An optimistic man, Mr. Bierker has faith in our future. He understands that today's youth will shape tomorrow's world. His interest in the well-being of adolescents extends past his role as assistant principal, a position he has held at South since 1975, to his active membership in C.A.N.D.L.E., an anti-substance abuse group.

Mr. Bierker believes that each individual is responsible for his or her own happiness. "Make every day count" is his favorite motto. Mr. Bierker practices what he preaches. His involvement with the plight of young people clearly demonstrates this.

With the words, "a complete educator," Mr. Richard deRosa, English department head, describes Mr. Kenneth Holvig. A teacher at South since its opening 11 years ago, Mr. Holvig has coached boys' varsity hockey equally as long — five years at North and six at South. He has coached girls' varsity tennis, fall and spring, for the past seven years. Although Mr. Holvig admits that his dual role as English teacher and coach requires a great amount of time, he says his coaching has become important to both the school and community.

Mr. Holvig has initiated a new English course at South — Writing To Be Published — the result of a grant he received from the famed Bread Loaf School of English. With the grant, he is researching the effects of publishing on students.

Ziggy,
You certainly brought vigor, wit and verve to Film class. You make a great ape too! Glad to see the positive progress you made from freshman to senior year. Best always, KSH

"Math should be appreciated like fine art and music," says Mrs. Kay Korn. This statement exemplifies her devotion to mathematics. As mathematics department head at South since its opening, she has guided the department through many improvements — including the development of computer science courses and the changeover to a Course I, II, III sequence.

Mrs. Korn stresses the fun side of math by supporting activities like the Algebra Bowl and MAA examination contests. In addition, she coaches South's Math League, a team consisting of outstanding math scholars.

According to Mrs. Korn, the importance of math stretches far beyond its obvious practical aspects. "Math teaches one to organize data, analyze it, and draw conclusions. We encourage students of all abilities to take as much math as possible. Math is not just for a chosen few — math is for everyone," concludes Mrs. Korn.

"Child advocate" are the words Dr. Arthur Lebofsky, head of the science department, uses to define himself. Throughout his teaching career, the best interests of students have remained foremost in his mind and heart.

Doc, as he is affectionately known, has been a member of the science department at South since its opening, and its department head for the past ten years. "I insulate my staff from bureaucracy," he says of his role as chairman.

Dr. Lebofsky spends his free time on the podium, representing students and promoting their well-being. He is former president of Strawtown's PTA, a co-president of the PTA Council, and an attender of almost every school board meeting for the past eleven years. He is also on the executive board of the New York State Science Supervisors' Association, and president of their Westchester-Rockland division. Whenever he has the opportunity, Dr. Lebofsky speaks out in favor of students and education. His multiple involvements show his dedication.

Doc has been involved with track and cross country for 21 years. He feels he can relate better to adolescents as a coach than as a teacher because of the impact of coaching's one-on-one situation.

Dr. Lebofsky deserves the consideration and respect he gets from South students. He has been a positive influence upon our world as teacher and coach, and, most of all, as a human being.

Always keenly interested in history, Mr. Charles Holbrook first decided to become a teacher after his graduation from Wesleyan University in 1970. He has thoroughly enjoyed working at South since the school's opening. In addition to his diverse teaching schedule, he serves as adviser to the New York State High School Mock Trial Tournament, and is chairman of the District Human Relations Committee.

Influenced to enter politics by both his father and the political activity of the 60's, Mr. Holbrook is serving his third term as Town Councilman, and is "content as far as the immediate future is concerned" with his political position.

When he is not involved with the hustle and bustle of school activities or politics, Mr. Holbrook can be found birdwatching, collecting baseball cards, or, as he has been doing for the past few years, jogging around Rockland Lake at 5:30 in the morning.

South's business department offers a wide variety of courses. For students interested in exploring business as a career, two college courses are available for credit. Students taking business administration for a semester can receive three credits. Six credits are available upon completion of the advanced placement college accounting course.

But our business department does not cater only to the future business major. It offers courses which help the entire population as well. A semester-long course in typing is a great help for students who need to type their papers and for those who use computers. Alpha notehand and shorthand courses aid students in developing faster and more effective notetaking.

As Ms. Debora Gaber, a returning member of the department says, "For the amount of time put into each class, the returns are great."

"I view counseling as a learning process," says Ms. Joan Fitzgerald, "in which the counselor learns new ways to obtain information, to make decisions, to respond to his or her environment, and then applies what has been learned to new situations."

The guidance program at South is concerned with the educational, vocational, social, and personal needs of each student. Through individual and group guidance, the counselors help the students to develop their skills, abilities, and leadership qualities. The program also provides assistance with the selection of educational and career goals.

In addition to academic, career, and college counseling, the guidance department concerns itself with such matters as financial aid and the foreign exchange program.

According to Ms. Fitzgerald, the counselor's role in the counseling process is "to assist the students to cope with their own uniqueness, needs, abilities, and aspirations." All counselors, Ms. Fitzgerald believes, want their student-counselees to become "well-integrated, disciplined people capable of accepting responsibility for their behavior." As a result of this, students will be "able to assume a vital role in society," Ms. Fitzgerald says.

Our secretaries at South are not your average, everyday typsts. Instead, they are a set of hard-working women — women who are vital to the smooth operation of our school. They are often surrogate mothers to us, offering strong shoulders to lean on.

Our secretaries also become telephone operators, mailmen, and money collectors. They relay hundreds of messages through the telephones and over the PA system daily, they deal with mail and with the delivery of items left in offices for students, and they collect funds from students in the Clarkstown Tutoring Service. Our secretaries are also schedule guardians with access to each student and teacher at any given moment of the day through a series of neatly organized schedules.

And, of course, our secretaries type, type, and type. But that is just one aspect of their job — just one of the many services they perform with a smile!

Mr. Hy Shuster makes contact with a distant galaxy.

"Welcome back!" says Mr. LeRoy Conklin to new assistant principal, Mr. Raymond Koplinka.

We'll always remember you, Mr. Yves Knafou!

As long as there has been an Eidolon, there has been your poetry, Mr. Yves Knafou. With each spring, your warm sentiments have graced our yearbook's pages. This year is no exception. The students and faculty, however, do not think of this as your "swan song". Rather, it is the closing of a chapter. While you may be leaving, your warmth, your wit, and your caring presence will remain forever with those whom you have touched.

Thank you, Mr. Knafou, for being our friend and our teacher. We will miss you.

Thank you, Mr. Walsh, for guiding us well over the past four years. We will always remember your good humor and your kindness.

The Other Side of Knowledge

What is more important
the canvas or the paint
the tune or the words
the act or the actor
It really does not matter
does it
because we need all . . .
for many a season I talked of knowledge and it was fitting but for this
my swan song
let me tell of the other side
let me speak about feeling

It really does not matter
how beautiful the rainbow
when you are blind
how beautiful the song
if you are deaf
how delicious the meal
when taste is gone
how tantalizing the aroma if you can't smell
and most of all
the texture of a young leaf
the warmth of a freshly laid egg
the delight of water
in a mountain pool
the skin of a newborn baby
don't matter either
if you can't feel

and then there are those who can see
and don't
those who can hear
and don't
or won't
those for whom all awareness is behind locked doors . . .
well
there are two keys
possibly
and a bit of magic
one key many are born with but few can find
call it talent, imagination
the other we can fashion
with will and effort
and time and desire
and some help
call it education . . .

the bit of magic
is love

School Spirit: Involvement

When you think of your school, do you think of it simply as a place you have to go to learn, or do you think of it as a place to learn and have fun? When you consider all the time you spend in school, and all the people you see there every day, doesn't it make sense that your school should be the focal point of both your social and your educational life? At South, there are activities for everyone — sports, drama, music and dance, a plethora of clubs, and other after-school activities.

These activities are planned by various organizations within the school, all of which are part of the General Organization — the G.O. The G.O. is responsible for planning activities to get everyone at South interested in his or her school. When ideas are created within the G.O., these ideas then reach the entire school through the homeroom representatives.

Members of the G.O. are vital in encouraging school spirit among all South students, but they, themselves, benefit from their involvement by learning about leadership and working with other people.

According to Mrs. Carol Predtechenskis, G.O. activities adviser, leadership means more than telling other people what to do. It means working and communicating with all members of an organization and getting them to work for you.

People should leave South with good memories of these four very important years of their lives. "Let's not ever knock childlike enthusiasm when it comes to school spirit," says Mrs. Predtechenskis.

According to Mr. James Nash, G.O. adviser, "Students have to take an active interest in the G.O. or student council if it is to achieve its objective of becoming the spokesman for their interests." Although Mr. Nash believes the G.O. has moved in this direction during the past few years, it still has considerable distance to go. "Only an involved student body can make for progress," Mr. Nash adds.

CLASS OF 1987

FRESHMANIA!

Freshmen phobia. What's that? Definitions vary, but all include fear — unreasonable, persistent fear. The list of freshmen fears is too long to catalog here, but heading the list of fears are upperclassmen, big, bad high school teachers, and getting lost within school boundaries.

We remember our first steps into South and our feelings of unimportance to the school. We recall thinking at the end of the first day that after eight long periods of schoolwork, everyone has the right to retreat home and collapse.

After several weeks, we set aside our fears. We realize that life really begins at 2:01! And we do not feel like humble, lowly freshmen anymore. Our first days at South start to dim, and we feel like people who make up the strong and exciting class of 1987. We jump into school spirit.

After all, being "low man on the totem pole" lasts for only a year. It's not so bad, and, besides, life at South can get only better.

CLASS OF 1986

Ziggy,
I'm really glad that we became friends. your a
really great guy.
Good luck in life
with whatever you may do. Love Do

To be, or not to be a sophomore —
That is a question?
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind —
To suffer the slings-and-arrows of outrageous seniors,
Or — to take arms against a sea of juniors,
And by opposing end them?
No more, okay guys; just give a sophomore a break.
(With apologies to W.S.)

The sophomore year has been called "the Year of the Sweet Sixteen." In addition to the thrills of sweet sixteen parties, the sixteenth birthday is also the day when a driver's permit may be obtained. The liberation and maturity that sophomores feel as they cruise down the street behind the wheel of a car becomes an all-important part of the tenth-grade experience.

For many, sophomore year means emerging into high school society. For the first time, sophomores are able to play on a varsity team. They are able to actively participate in clubs and organizations at South. Moreover, sophomores' opinions and suggestions are considered by the upperclassmen, and the viewpoints become significant. Sophomores become importa to both curricular and extracurricular activities.

Being a sophomore has many advantages. The adjustments freshman year are a dim memory, and the pressures of decisio during senior year are a big two years away.

The Class of 1986 has every intention of making their pre ence known in the next two years — with a show of spirit a determination to make South better than ever.

CLASS OF 1985

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times." The junior year is a time for fun, but yet a time for tremendous work and pressure.

By the time we become juniors, we have grown accustomed to life at South. We have found our niche in high-school life. It is a time for self-development, achievements, and growth of friendships. But when the junior year starts, the presence of college looms in the air. It is a time of overloaded school schedules and tests with funny names like PSAT and SAT. Also, we must keep involved in activities for the dreaded college applications and still find time for ourselves. With all of this, many of us choose to ta on the responsibilities of a job. We must keep grades up a pressures down.

Through it all, the junior makes time for fun. Being a juni entitles us to the freedoms of "our great age and station." We c earn money by working, and we are allowed to drive. We spe lots of time making new friends, but, still, we hold on to t friendships that have been important for so long.

The junior year is a time of growth in every way — academica ly, socially, and personally.

Seniors
Class of 1984

Preparing for the future: Cheryl Bellamy.

A scholarly group: Andy Rosenbaum, Vince Milaccio, Andréa Kelly, Rich Bloomfeld, and Jamie Steinfin

Thinking of the future: Dave Krell, Bernard Brown, Robin Levine.

Making plans: Jill Pavia, Laura Sullivan, Joanne Greenan, Jane Recine.

As seniors, we look back with wonder at our high-school years. No chosen path has led in the anticipated direction. Rather, each path has taken unexpected twists and turns, leading to other walkways.

By this time, we have begun to like and accept ourselves. We have enjoyed watching our true identity unfold.

We have awaited senior year so long. Who knew it would be like this? As underclassmen, we thought about being seniors. And here w are! We see another world ahead — college ar the work force. It's frightening and yet exci ing.

But, for now, we're still in high school, ar our biggest worries are whose party to go t which college to choose, and who our prom da will be. We're thankful for the carefree fre dom which permits us to grow and learn.

High-school years, some people say, are the st four years of your life. That's a rather pressing thought when you're a senior almost lfway through the year.

Graduation from high school is probably the ost radical change in a person's life. For the rst time, almost all our future rests on our wn shoulders. Graduation is supposed to be ke opening a door and stepping out into the ld world. We doubt it will be as dramatic as ople say; nothing ever is.

The senior year, however, is the last of the eltered years. Some graduates will go to col-ge, some will get jobs, others will enter the rvice. The large majority will be somewhat, if t totally, on their own. We are rapidly apoaching this day, and with all the problems in e world today — economic, political, and oral — we're a little concerned.

The newspapers and television newscasts overflow with depressing stories. It's getting to the point where no news really is good news.

Now, hearing the news might make life after high school seem quite a burdensome task to many seniors. On the other hand, we believe that being optimistic is the best approach.

There will never be a problem-free society for the simple reason that man's worst enemy is man. Nevertheless, we believe that this generation will adjust and learn to cope with present problems, just as the generation of the 50's adjusted to being the first society to live with threat of nuclear destruction.

So, as high-school seniors, just months away from graduation, we're optimistic. We're looking forward, with great curiosity, to seeing what the future brings.

Lobby Lingering

Adriane Gross and Karen Bruton guard the doors.

Awaiting a phone call are Becky Miller and Alison Carmey.

"Eating pens is not healthy!" explains Anthony DeMarsico to Mike Wholey.

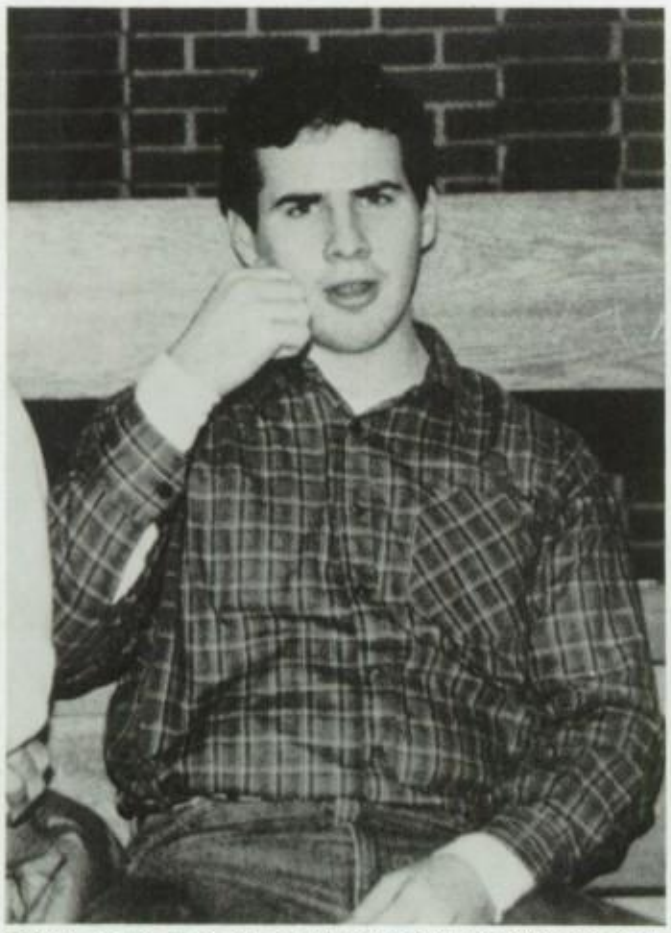
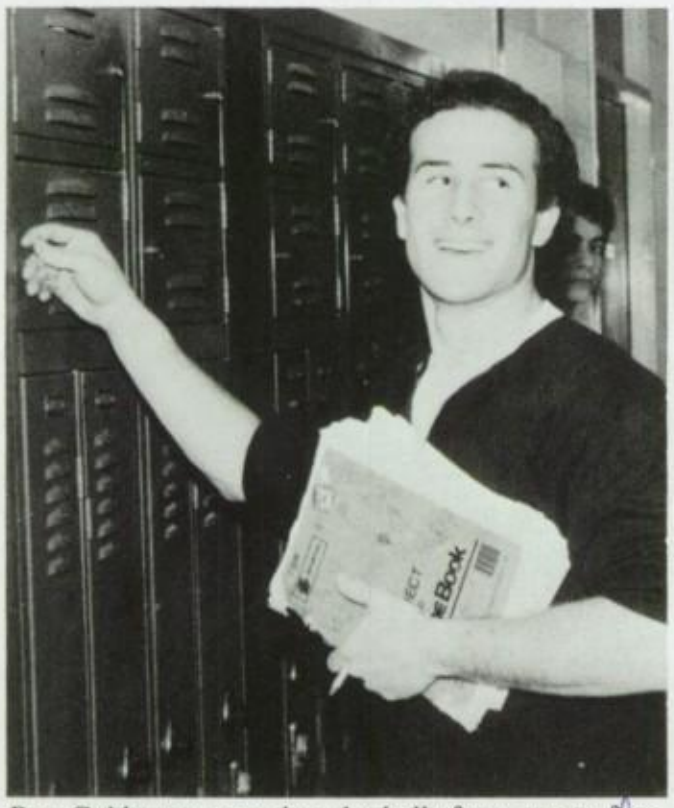
Hanging out: Karen Klaus, Kathy Ryan, Kathy Lacker, Diane Wiegand, and Liz Gadry.

The Boys



"How come I'm not getting a dial tone?" wonders Kevin Gilroy.

The gang dares anyone to enter the lobby.



Roy Goldwasser watches the halls for a pretty face.

Seniors James Tramm and P.J. Lynch plan a trip out to lunch.

Ziggy,
I'm glad I got to know you in high school. You're a nice guy a good friend. Good luck in the future & keep in touch

Senioritis Runs Rampant

The bright sun is shining, leaving a beautiful reflection on the water. High school students are lying in the sun, playing frisbee, or doing whatever else they please. It seems like an average typical day at Rockland Lake, but there's only one flaw. It's 12:00 on a Friday afternoon.

One might ask what is going in this idyllic setting. There's an easy explanation: senioritis. This strange phenomenon has been going on for years. When students see a ray of sunshine, it carries them away — from teachers, homework, and 43-minute classes.

The smell of fresh air and sunshine are just early signs of summer and two months without teachers and homework. Of course, the season is rushed a bit and can start anytime from September to June.

Trying to stop senioritis is virtually impossible for the teacher. In this perennial battle, the teacher will scream and threaten until he or she is blue in the face, but students win. Getting students to come to class on a rainy afternoon is hard enough, but when the sun shines, the teacher can depend on at least three or four students absent or several students unprepared.

This disease may never be eradicated. For some, senioritis may start as early as freshmen year, but it never fails to strike. A student develops senioritis at least once. Perhaps, classes outside and less homework will increase class enrollment and participation. But whatever the cure, we hope someone will find it fast, because the whole senior class has just walked out the doors.

Locker

Tickling Kirk Saboda is the only way Kerry Monahan can get him to smile.

Seniors Maureen Barry, Janet Vilece, and Leah Manzella are relieved to have survived the locker ordeal.

John Neuman and Eric Reinhart: "It took us three hours to get this thing open, but we did it!"

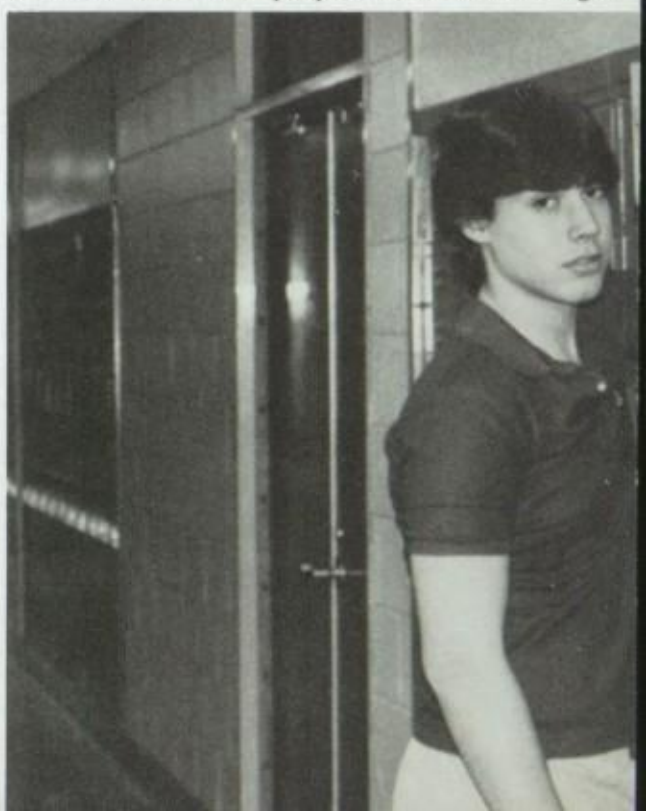
Zig,

It's been nice knowing you, have a great time in what ever you do. Remember the times we used to go fishing in Harriman, drank Heavily, and then started singing New York, New York. Good Luck.

John

Lisa Sugarman is glad to be going home.

A new record! Three people in one locker: Megan



Lunacy

Beth Barry: "Something just bit my hand!"

Yates, Katie Barry, and Anne Heim.

Roseann Esposito asks Keiran Keelty and Fran Bertolini for a lift.

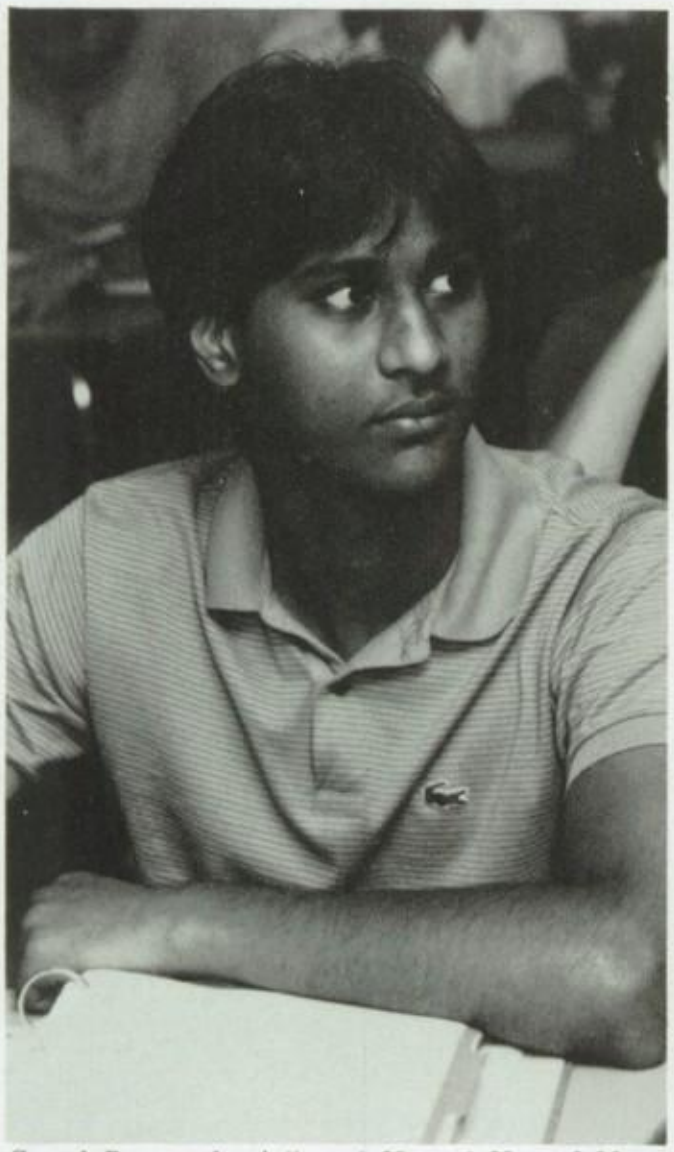
In the beginning, when schools were first created, someone decided it would be a good idea to have separate rooms for each class. Then, because Americans are reputed to be physically out of shape, a limit was put on the amount of time allotted between classes. When this system appeared to work too smoothly, the locker was invented, and the student body is still trying to recover from its effects.

There are many different breeds of lockers. Perhaps the most vicious is the Outicus Boondoxies, inevitably located three miles from the nearest human civilization. The torment of many freshmen is the Helpae-can't-see-um. These third-floor lockers were installed in case a group of giants decided to attend Clarkstown South. Unfortunately, these are occupied by the shortest students in school. Everybody's favorites is the Stuckum Shutus. Located throughout the school, this breed of lockers requires special treatment. Hidden combinations, special tricks, well-placed kicks, and a touch of good luck are the only cures for such problems.

Few people realize that each locker is a living entity. But indeed, every locker eats homework, reproduces junk, and excretes all means of useless papers. Some are sneaky and change their combinations over vacation. Others invite local derelicts to break in and kidnap a calculator. Still, more need pictures of Soloflex men taped inside before they'll behave.

By the time we become seniors, we're old veterans in locker warfare. Different people have different methods of dealing with lockers. Some students carry all their books to every class. There are those who have forsaken all books, and have no need for a locker. Others have come to peace with their lockers by giving in to all demands. In any case, the locker is one institution which has found its niche in the educational community, and will never fail to make students late to class.

It's Not All Fun And Games . .



Suresh Pattanashetti: " . . . 1:58 . . . 1:59 . . . 2:00 . . . 2:01!"

"No, no . . . Please don't call on me!" thinks Lisa Koval.

Brian Romney smiles with a friend.

"Why did I take typing?" questions Josephine Conte.

Debbie Baar challenges The Thinker.

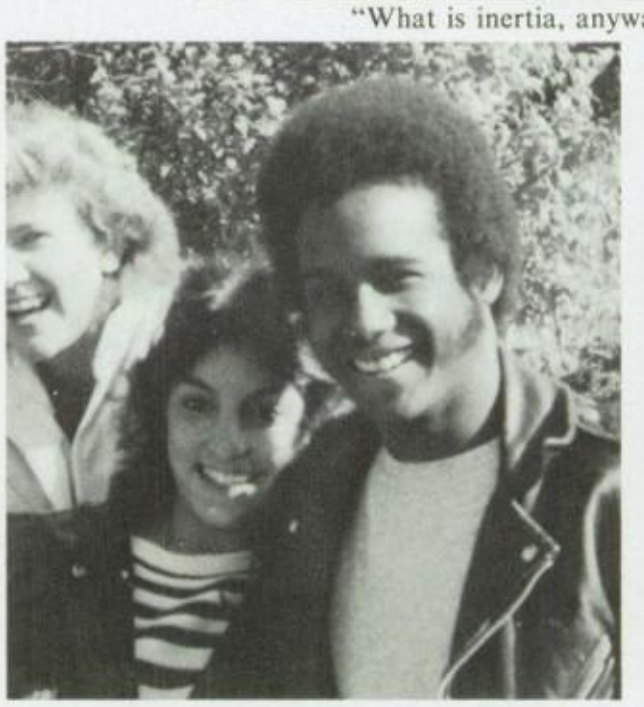
"What is inertia, anyway?" asks Reggie Eisenson.



Lauren Casey: "This typewriter is making me sick!"

But We Try Our Best

"What are they laughing at?"

"Paula, tell Eileen to stop choking me!" Gina Piscani says to Paula Goldstein about Eileen Rutter.

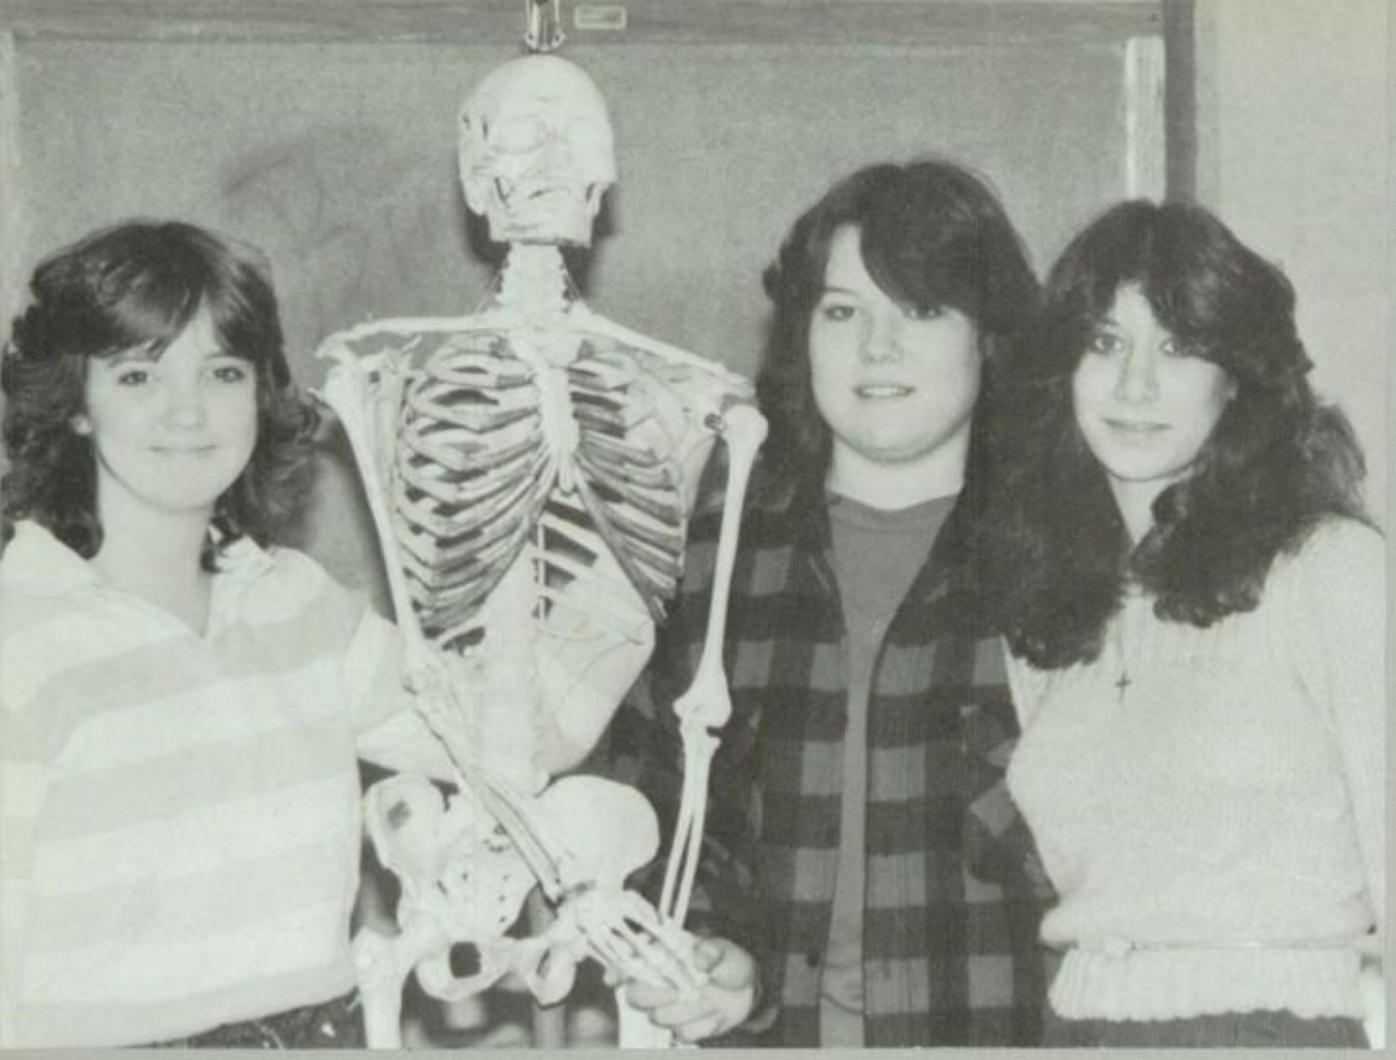
Joann Tuvim, Kathy Carney, and Joyce Heim: "We've got the look!"

Look out Lou Ferrigno, here comes Bob Zottoli!

Hats off to Jill Schnabel and Tara Sullivan.

Donna Hogarty and Jen Miani play in the leaves.

Someone call Guiness, because we fit eleven people and an arm in one picture.



Three nursing students with a dieting friend.

In Recurring Themes, Ken Godwin wonders where to go for lunch.

What Every Senior Forgot to Ask

If only . . .

— front doors were not off limits, especially on rainy days and when projects are due.
— the senior parking lot could be expanded.
— a gas mask were not required to enter the school bathrooms.
— late bells and the door closing to homeroom would not occur simultaneously.
— fire drills would not take place during blizzards and rainstorms.
— our lockers would not do battle with us.
— Burger-King and House of Pizza catered the school lunches.
— tests were banned.
— the clocks would work and the P.A. would self-destruct.

"Now if we can all kick at the same time . . . ": K. Ferreira, A. Kelly, C. Juris, L. Kessler, and P. Harkin.

Advertisements

Advertisements are the most personal part of the yearbook. They provide the chance for us to record the exceptional memories and special love we have for people close to us. We glance through and spot that embarrassing baby picture. Many a surprise appears here — perhaps, a mesage from family or friends that we did not expect. These advertisements are expressions of relationships which mean so much to us — now and forever.

Goliath

As we sit here and contemplate all the memories of yesterday, we see that we have shared many good times. There have been moments when we have wished that we could spend eternity right beside each other. There have been moments of deep sorrow and the act of forgiving one another. Yet, through it all, we are still together. There could never be a more beautiful relationship than that which we have right now.

Best Friends

When I am sad I think of you, you tell me don't worry everything will work out. When I am lonely I think of you, and I know you will always be there. When I do something good you share my joys and tell me I did great. When I think of a friend I think of you, you are everything anyone could wish for and I LOVE YOU dearly for it. I will always cherish our friendship and hope it lasts forever.

When your down and troubled and you need some love and care. Nothing is going right. Close your eyes and think of me and soon I will be there to brighten up even your darkest nights. You just call out my name and you know wherever I am I'll come running to see you again . . .

"You've got a friend"

. . . people can be so cold. They'll hurt you and desert you. They'll take your soul if you let them. But oh don't you let them.

You just call out my name and you know I'll come running to see you again.

You have been my friends and stood by me whenever I needed a shoulder to lean on. Memories create a bond no time can ever destroy. I will never forget those who have made me who I am. FRIENDS FOREVER!! I love you all.

— Kathy

Mom and Dad,

Thank you for your understanding, your patience, and your love. You have made me what I am today, and I will always be your little girl. I love you forever, and that is a bond no time or space can ever affect. I LOVE YOU!

Andréa —

We survived the yearbook and everything else together. You were willing to stay up until 4 in the morning (missing ski trips) in order to write captions, copy (NO more — I don't care — I can't be creative at this hour!!), crop pictures, eat dinasour cookies, and do all sorts of yearbook garbage when no one elso was willing to. You did the work (plenty of it) and asked for no recognition — you merely wanted to lend a hand. Thank you for letting me keep my sanity and my sense of humor. You have made this year truly special for me. My best friend and constant companion — I'll love you always — Kathy Patrice — You are a truly special person. Smile and let the world know what is truly in your heart.

Vinnie —

You were a friend we will never forget. Your memory will last with those who knew you for a long, long time. We love you forever!

It is hard to believe the years have gone by so quickly. You have grown from the baby with a twinkle in her eyes to the adult with the look of pride and assurance in such a short time.

You have always filled our lives with pride and joy. May all of your dreams be fulfilled.

Love always,
Your greatest fans,
Mom, Dad,
Russell and Meredith.

Dear Christine,
We know we've hasseled and harassed; happiness (ultimately) was our aim.
We know we've prodded and, at times, pained; progress was our desire.
We feel we've loved; your life's rewards, we know, will result from our efforts if you but match them.
You've been a source of continual pride to us; the future brings more.

All our love,
Mom and Dad

Dear Chris,
We are closer now
Than ever before.
Our age difference has gone
Right out the door.
And now you're leaving
We'll be far apart.
But I hope you know
You'll still be in my heart.
Love,
Susan

Debbie,
All of us who love you share a special pride on your graduation.

Love,
Dad

Dear Boo,
We thank you for how proud you made us, to this point in your life. We know our pride will increase as you progress in the coming years.
Be sweet, loveable, Irish, Coleen Forever.

Our relationship has led us to know and care for each other in a very special way. We've been through so many times, both good and bad and faced them all together. You have taught me so much. How to care, trust, need and most of all love someone. I'll always be here with "open arms".

I love you more than words can say.

Dearest Sandra,
It was but yesterday we took you home, and here I am writing you a graduation poem.

Oh, how we tried to slow the passing years.
To savor those moments of love, happiness, and tears.
But, as the saying goes, time waits for no man;
And so each of us does the best he can to crave out certain times we will hold dear.
With you, my daughter, it's been every day, of the year.
For the years to come there's no change from the above,
We wish you all the joys of life,
with all our love,
Mom and Dad

Dear Carol,

Congratulations.

We wish you all the Joys of life and Success throughout the coming years.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Joseph

Dear Brad,

Your excellence as a student, as a son and as a brother, and as a human being fill us with pride.

Love,

FRIENDS FOREVER!!!!

. . . From that first day on the school bus, I knew she was the one for me. I knew her name, but that was all. For three years I've been searching to find the person behind the name. I found a girl with a beautiful inside as well as out.

She is intelligent, funny, responsible, caring, spontaneous and loveable. She made me feel wonderful about myself and life.

Melissa, I love you and want to learn even more about you.

Love always & forever

PEGGY AND MISSY

Susan,

You are so special and we are so grateful you are ours.
Sharing in your life enriches our lives. You've been the source of so much joy — a few gray hairs and frazzled nerves too — but we wouldn't swap you for anyone.

Love you,
Dad & Mom

Dearest Susan,

An outstanding granddaughter
A loving niece
Such a pleasure!
May God grant that the future be all that you want it to be.

Love,
Grandma, Grandpa,
Uncle Joey & Uncle Ricky

To our wonderful daughter Nancy,
You have brought us all the love a daughter could ever bring.
From a lovely little girl full of laughter, you have grown into a beautiful and charming young lady of whom we are very proud.
You have brought a special brightness to our lives.
We wish you all the happiness and success life has to offer.

All our love forever,
Mom, Dad, and Jackie.

Great Expectations

Life consists of an endless chain of events. Each decision, right or wrong, alters the path, but life continues throughout.

School is no different. It remains relatively unchanged, although a genius may be enrolled, or someone else may fail out. Each year new freshmen are initiated, seniors graduate, teachers come and go. No two years are the same, yet certain institutions remain intact: golden friendships, inevitable tests, spirited football games (and parties afterwards), nervous first dates. Of course, there are those unexpected events which surprise us: a chance meeting with that special person, a day parents begin to seem human, an upset victory in a favorite sport. Such memories are precious memories we will keep forever.

Times spent in high school have not always taken the expected route, but these times have been four of the best years of our lives.

Education is our catalyst to the future. We thank family, friends, and faculty for making it all possible.

Zig,
Good Luck
to all you do.
Its been remember when we
Good luck and great adventsing

were there
happy partying
times

To Zig,
Best of luck
You finally made it
dont get to wasted.
your friend
Andy

Dear Siggie-
Hope the years
ahead will bring you nothing but
happiness.
Love,
Susan + Jaine

Dear Siggie,
Congratulations on graduating from college. Best wishes for a successful career.
Remember to keep in touch.
Love,

To my one + only: ♥ 2/4/07

There are times that I think of you + all the happiness you have given to me. When I needed you, you where always there + I love you very much for that + many other things. This year has been the most beutiful year in my life, you are so special. The times we have spent together are times I'll never forget. I know in the future you will be a very successful man and I pray that you get everything you wish for ever to get married at 40 yrs old. As for me, I hope we get to meet in the future me as the successful, Rich, Powerful, + especially beutiful Woman, and you successful, Rich, + Powerful. most of all that we are happy. I Remember all the good times we have had like the times in the Commuter Parking, when it snowed, the Airport. I remember the fear we had of failing + of my. Brain + Mrs. Blanchard You have showed me a lot in a way by little things you say. God, I want to tell you so much about my feelings for you and all it-

WE'RE FULL OF SURPRISES

I love you ♡♡

Ziggy: you just left + I feel so happy cause your so great + you make me feel so great! These past 9 months are months of the utmost importance to me cause we shared so much. I love you + that love for you will always be there. I want to share my future with you. My biggest wish is that, I don't know how to say this but that we do share our future together & happily. I love you very much.

P.S. You'll always be in my thoughts.

Denise ♡ Ziggy

P.S. Remember I'll always be there when you need someone. I ♡ U.
(Forever)

Love
Denise
